ANNEXURE 1

REFERENCES AND BIBLIOGRAPHY

Accounting in China.

Ernst & Young. (2010). IFRS-JGAAP comparison.

Ernst & Young. (2011). International GAAP © 2011: generally accepted accounting principles under international financial reporting standards (vol. 1). New Delhi, John Wiley and Sons Ltd.: Bonham et al.

Ernst & Young. (2011). International GAAP © 2011: generally accepted accounting principles under international financial reporting standards (vol. 2). New Delhi, John Wiley and Sons Ltd.: Bonham et al.

Ibarra, V. and Suez-Sales, Martha G. (2011). A comparison of the international financial reporting standards (IFRS) and generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP) for small and medium-sized entities (SMEs) and compliances of some Asian countries to IFRS. Journal of International Business Research, 10 (3), 35-62.

KPMG. (2003). Implementing IFRS extract from: IFRS compared with Australian GAAP.

KPMG. (2011). China: Illustrative annual financial statements under Hong Kong financial reporting standards.

MATLAB 7.10.0 Release 2010.

Ming, Li Tak and Andy. (2011). Nss enriching knowledge for the bafs curriculum series: hong kong accounting standards (new). Hong Kong Institute of Vocational Education (Kwai Chung)

ANNEXURE 1: References And Bibliography

[x]
Price Waterhouse Coopers. (2005). AIFRS and IFRS – similar but not the same.
www.pwc.com/au

Price Waterhouse Coopers. (2006). Straight through reporting with xbrl web services: how u.s. government agencies can achieve an efficient budgetary, financial and performance reporting environment. Available at www.pwc.com/XBRL

Statsoft Electronic statistics textbook.

