ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I offer deep sense of gratitude and respect for my research supervisors, Dr. G. N. Nayak, Professor of Marine Science, Head of Department of Marine Sciences, Dean of Faculty of Life Sciences and Environment, Goa University, India and Dr. S. Mandal, Scientist, Ocean Engineering Division (OED), National Institute of Oceanography (NIO), Goa, India for their invaluable guidance, constant encouragement and support at every stage right from the commencement of my research career. Their constant motivation and suggestions have immensely helped in completing the thesis within stipulated time frame. They gave me independence in carrying out research work and opportunity to grow in the challenging subject of nearshore processes and shoreline changes, an ideal environment any researcher could ask for. The guidance has projected me as a confident researcher. Thanks also for their valuable vital administrative support.

It is in a deep sense of indebtedness that I acknowledge and revere my esteemed Dr. V. Sanil Kumar, Scientist of OED, NIO, Goa, India and Vice Chancellor's nominee in the Faculty Research Committee (FRC), for his invaluable help, encouragement, meticulous attention and constant inspiration throughout the course of work, enabling me to complete my research work.

I'm thankful to faculty members of Department of Marine Sciences, Goa University viz Dr. H. B. Menon, Dr. Aftab Can, Dr. S. Upadhyay, Dr. M. V. Matta, Dr. C. U. Rivonkar for their encouragement. I'm also thankful to the non-teaching staffs of Department of Marine Sciences viz Mr. Amonkar, Mr. Narayan, Mr. Sadanand, Mr. Atchut, Mrs. Sansana, Mrs. Veronica for their support and encouragement. I would like to thank Prof. S. Shivkumar, Director, Centre for Latin American Studies; Prof. D. J. Bhat, Head of Department of Botany, Dr. D. Rodriguese, Asstt. Registrar-III, Goa University for their kind support and encouragement. I thank the Registrar, Goa University and his subordinates for their kind administrative help.
I am grateful to Dr. S. R. Shetye, Director, NIO, Goa, India, for providing the required facilities at the Institute. I thank Mr. K. Ashok Kumar Scientist, Mr. R. Gowthaman, Mr. S. Jaya Kumar, and all staffs of OED, NIO, for their encouragement and support. I thank Mr. V. Krishna Kumar, Human Resource Development Group, NIO for his constant encouragement.
