| CONTENTS |
|----------|----------|
| CHAPTER I. INTRODUCTION | 1 - 31 |

Community Development Programme - in perspectives and objectives.
Rural Planning, importance and objectives of planning, historical development of the programme of rural planning in India, the Planning Commission and the Five Year Plans.
Inauguration of the Community Development programme in India, their importance and meaning, main features of Community Development Programme, Agriculture and allied fields, village and small scale industries health and rural sanitation, education and social education, co-operation and social welfare, animal husbandry, public works, irrigation and transport.
The term Community Development, views of different authorities on the subject - Community Development, main aspects of the programme, need and importance as emphasized by various authorities, people's participation in the programme of Community Development.
The administration of the programme in the country, the state, central and district and block level organization, staff provided for Community Development work, the phases of the programme, National Extension Service blocks and Community Development Blocks, budget allotments for every block, stage I and stage II blocks, schematic budget for these blocks, analysis of cost, the programme and its application to rural India, Conclusion.
CHAPTER II. THE SETTING

Saugor district in Madhya Pradesh, geographical position of the state of Madhya Pradesh, the ratio of working force, males and females, the crop zones, the Rehli Block, geographical situation, Stage II phase, date of opening of the Block, its stage, No. of villages included in the Block, area in square miles and population, variation of population of the Saugar District.

The Agricultural base of the district, crops grown, per acre value of crops, per acre production of other crops wheat, rice, gram, jowar, ground-nut, linseed and til, the crop pattern in the district, the acres sown in various crops, the total area sown, the programme of Community Development in Saugar district, the district income from various sources, conclusion.

CHAPTER III. AGRICULTURE AND LAND IMPROVEMENT

The role of agriculture in the national economy, importance and significance of agriculture, the role of Agriculture Extension Officer for Community Development activities, the broad schemes of agricultural development as envisaged in the Community Development programme, improved seeds, distribution of improved seeds in Rehli Block, distribution of manures and fertilisers, animal waste, human waste, oil seeds, cakes, green manures, chemical fertilisers, other manures, comparative efficiency of various and fertilisers, green manuring and its adoption in Rehli block, distribution of manures and fertilisers in Rehli Block, recommendations by the Estimate Committee of Lok Sabha, Plant protection schemes, use of insecticides, anti-locust work, weed control, seed storage and control of mites and rats, Plant protection schemes in Rehli Block.

Land development schemes, sub-division and fragmentation and sub-division of land holdings, preparation of agricultural plans by villagers, the suggestions made by Shri Shrimannarayan.
Animal husbandry, cattle wealth in India, problem with which they are suffering, schemes of supply of improved bulls, castration of animals, artificial insemination, animal husbandry schemes in Rehli Block.

Minor Irrigation Schemes, construction of kachcha wells, pucca wells and repairs to old wells, supply of oil engines, electric pumps for irrigation, the scheme of minor irrigation in Rehli Block.

Remarks on the agricultural programme under the Community Development Drive, suggestions for improvement, Mrs. Kusum Nair on the programme of Community Development, Conclusion.

CHAPTER IV. COTTAGE AND SMALL SCALE INDUSTRIES. 73-102

Importance of Village and Small Scale industries, their role in the present economic development, advantages, the problems with which these industries are suffering at present, the problems of credit, the problems of raw material, market competition, transportation and the problem of better technical skill, problem of competition from large scale industries, suggestions and remedies for solving these problems, recommendations of the D.G.Karve Committee Report and the International Planning Team, the policy of the Government during the Five Year Plans, the main cottage and small scale industries which can be developed in blocks, facilities from the State Government, the Director of Industries, the State Financial Corporation, the National Small Industries Corporation, the State Bank of India, and the Community Development Programme, the development of cottage industries in Rehli Block, the establishment of Ambar Charkha, introduction of brick kiln, distribution of sewing machines, tannery industries, village ghani industries, progress made in the Rehli Block, suggestions by the Conference on Community Development at Mysore and the Nandlal Joshi Committee to evaluate the Community Development work in Madhya Pradesh (1960), Conclusion.
CHAPTER V. SOCIAL EDUCATION AND WELFARE OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN. Pages 105-135

Importance of the Social Education programme, the main aspects of the social education programme, the duties of the Social Education Organiser, the work of Social Education Organiser in Rehli Block, the co-ordination of the duties of the Social Education Organiser, the recommendations of the Nandlal Joshi Committee Report, the Lady Social Education Organiser in the Social Education Programme, her duties, recommendations of the National Conference on Community Development at Mysore City.

Welfare of Women and Children, the programmes under women welfare in rural areas, establishment of Mahila Samitis, membership in such Samitis, women's camp held, Balwadis and Nurseries, children attending these Balwadis.

Adult Education and School Education, progress of literacy centres in Rehli block, adult attending such adult centres, progress of village schools, poor enrolment of students and the remedy for better programmes, suggestions, youth clubs, their role, progress of social educational institutions in Rehli Block, Reading rooms and libraries, cultural film shows, farmers unions, organisation of village leaders training camps, suggestions for improvement progress made in the organisation of village leaders' training camps, functional leaders training camps organised in Rehli block, development of village outlook towards the programme of community development, evaluation of progress by the Programme Evaluation Organization, conclusion.

CHAPTER VI. HEALTH AND RURAL SANITATION. Pages 136-159

Importance of 'better health', the present general health of the rural people, reasons for their poor health, need for development, the programme of Community Development and rural health sanitation drive, Establishment of primary health centre, functions medical relief, maternal and child welfare, primary care in school health, provision of environmental sanitation, control of epidemics, collection of vital statistics, staff provided at the Primary Health Centres, Medical Officer, Lady Health Visitor, Sanitary Inspector, Midwives, Compounders, their duties and responsibilities, equipment provided at the Primary Health Centre, for consultation and diagnosis, laboratory, dispensary, surgical and obstetrical theatres, ward, progress of primary health centres in Rehli Block, maternity and child welfare activities.

Establishment of matrugahas, family planning, training of dais, distribution of medicines chests to the village level workers.

Environmental sanitation, paving of village lanes, repair and construction of roads, drains, rural latrines, urinals and construction of soakage pits, smokeless chullas, drinking water supply, repairs and construction of wells, hand pumps installed, disinfection of drinking water wells, health education, nutrition, food.

Suggestions for improvement in the village health, improvement in family living, Shri Shriman Narayan on village health programmes, Dr. Ensinger on family living, his suggestions, suggestions by Study Team on Community Projects regarding use of certain tried and proved remedies, Conclusion.

CHAPTER VII. CO-OPERATION AND PANCHAYAT RAJ. 159-183.

Need of co-operation, advantages to the rural economy, Community Development Programme and co-operation, formation of credit co-operatives, advantages to the rural public from credit co-operatives, suggestions for improvement, criticism of working, Report of Gadgil Committee, Report of Co-operative Planning Committee (Saraiya Committee) on credit co-operatives, Co-operative credit societies in Rehli Block during the Second Plan.

Formation of industrial co-operatives, need for development, target for their formation and progress in Rehli Block, Co-operative better farming societies in Rehli Block, formation of multipurpose co-operative societies in Rehli Block, Progress of co-operative movement in the block as a whole, the Reserve Bank of India on Multipurpose co-operative societies.
Co-operative farming, formation of co-operative farming societies, the causes for slow progress, report of the Study Team on Community Development on Co-operative Farming, the reasons for their slow progress. Reasons for the slow progress of the co-operative movement in the country, the Programme Evaluation Organization Report on large sized co-operative societies, the importance of village Panchayats, various recommendations by the Committees and conferences on the subject.

The scheme of democratic decentralisation, evolution of the idea of Panchayati Raj, during the Third Five Year Plan, its importance in the rural economy, acid tests for its successful implementation, problems of Panchayati Raj, Shri Shriman Narayan on Panchayati Raj and Co-operation, conditions for the success of Panchayati Raj, Conclusion.

CHAPTER VIII. SUMMARY AND CONCLUSION. ... 184-215.

The general working of the Community Development programme in Rehli Block, role of administration, findings for better results on their part, the main aspects of the programme, village production plans and their successfulness, place of social education activities in the programme, welfare of children, role of Gramsewaks, suggestions for improvement, the role of peoples participation, a national policy for Community Development, a word about the training programme of the administrative staff, facilities during the time of training, main suggestions by Shri H. Davenport for use of rural manpower and eradication of unemployment, the scheme of Panchayati Raj and democratic decentralisation, the discrepancies and drawbacks in the programme, their possible suggestions, the process of evaluation, village production plans, villagers training camp for leadership, means of communication, distribution of seeds and manures, problem of housing, duties of gram-sewikas, distribution of fuel wood to the villagers, potentialities in respect of village industries, visits for other blocks, coordination between various authorities, the N.D. Joshi Committee Recommendation in Madhya Pradesh, general working of the programme, the programme in reality, its success in the block, Conclusion.

BIBLIOGRAPHY .......... j - iii
APPENDIX I. MINIMUM PROGRAMME FOR STAGE I BLOCKS. iv - x
APPENDIX II. QUESTIONNAIRE .. xi - xvi