ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It is with appreciation that I acknowledge the support of several individuals in preparation of this thesis. First of all, I am grateful to my Supervisor, Professor Yogendra Singh, who patiently suggested modifications and smoothened rough edges in the text. I express my gratitude to Dr. Patricia Uberoi, Associate Professor, Institute of Economic Growth, Delhi, for her encouragement at every stage of this work, as well as for her many helpful comments on various drafts of this thesis. Thanks are also due to Motilal Saqi, Dr. Venugopal, Professor Jai Kishori Pandita, Dr. Kaushaliya Wali, Dina Nath Yaksha for their useful comments and discussions and to Dr. Vishnath Drabu for his useful suggestions on the historical chapter.

It is impossible to find words to thank the people amidst whom I conducted my fieldwork, especially Satish Razdan, Kamla Bagati, Shiela Munshi, Pran Nath Raina and Dr. Pyare Lal Kachru.

I am grateful to the librarians and the staff members at the Teen Murti Library, Jawaharlal Nehru University Library, J & K Dharmarth Trust Library, Rattan Tata Library, Kashmir Education, Culture and Science Library (in New Delhi) and the University Library, J & K Cultural Academy, Raghunath Mandir Library, Bhagwan Gopinath Ashram Library (in Jammu), for allowing me to have an access to books and other valuable references.
I owe a lot to my family members, Professor Girdhari Mohan, Shyamaji, Udbhav, Aarti, little Pragya, Krishna (at Delhi) and Balsundram, Meenakshi and Rahul (at Sydney). Special thanks to my friends Padma, Lopamudra, Deepika and Shalu.

My greatest debt of gratitude is to Jyoti Shankar Choudhary, without whose help and encouragement this work would not have been possible.

I express my gratitude to my father, Professor Girdhari Mohan Ganjoo for meticulously proof reading the manuscript.

Special thanks to Suresh Sharma who sat on the computer for hours together and painstakingly typed out this manuscript.

August/1996

MAITHILI GANJOO