Acknowledgements

It is difficult to state my gratitude to my Ph.D. supervisor, Professor V. S. Chauhan who gave me an opportunity to work at ICGEB for four years. I have been indebted in the preparation of this thesis to him. I could not have imagined having a better supervisor and mentor, and without his knowledge, perceptiveness and cracking of-the-whip I would never have finished. His enthusiasm, inspiration and great efforts to explain things clearly, simply, patiently, intelligently, and diplomatically have made a deep impression on me. Throughout my research work and thesis-writing period, he provided encouragement and sound advice. His comments on thesis drafts are themselves a course in critical thought upon which I will always draw. His capacity to combine critique with an immediate empathy and commitment towards workers and others engaged in struggle will always inspire me. Sir, I can’t thank you enough for all the attention you’ve given me and for the value of your insights.

I can not describe my “experiences” with Dr. Paushali Mukherjee throughout my research work at ICGEB. My very sincere acknowledgements to her for being able to guide me tirelessly and to make sure that this thesis is in shape. It was not possible to have completed my thesis without her ability to see light in the bleakest of times and to persist and persevere no matter what may come. Ma’m I can’t thank you enough for the constant support you have given me.

Special thanks to Dr. Suraksha Sachdev, Mr. Suman Mazumdar and Ms. Mariam Imam for introducing me to the world of recombinant protein expression and purification before using them for my immunological studies at ICGEB, New Delhi, India.

I would like to express my gratitude to Dr. Andrew Kitua, Director General, NIMR, Tanzania for granting me four years study-live to pursue my PhD degree at ICGEB. His constant help and encouragement is sincerely acknowledged.

I thank Dr. Martha Lemnge, Director, NIMR-Tanga Centre, Tanzania for her encouragement during my PhD programme.

I thank all ICGEB’s 2004 PhD faculty members for their interesting practical and theory lectures that built a foundation of my research work.

I would like to thank animal house staff members Dr. Chandramouli, Ashok, Rakesh, Munna, Sandip and Patra for providing me with an uninterrupted supply of mice, without which, it was not possible to carry out even a single experiment.

The help rendered by Dr. Shahid Jameel, Clement and Khalid in providing the elispot reader facility is duly acknowledged.

I thank Dr. Kanury Rao for providing FACS machine facility.

I thank Dr. Chetan Chitnis for the permission to use Hnilovert S microscope for cells counting purpose.

I thank Drs. Pawan Mahlotra, Renu Tuteja, Dinkar Sahal, Asif Mohamed, Shams Yazdani, Amit Sharma and Sam for their unconditional help during my stay at ICGEB.
I would like to extend my thanks to fellow lab mates especially Reshma, Mariam, Arun, Suman, Manzar, and to all the members of malaria group for helping me at various stages of my work and for bearing me with lots of patience.

I thank 2004 PhD batch mates for their company and help during my stay at ICGEB.

I wish to extend my warmest thanks to all scientists and the technical staff in the entire ICGEB, New Delhi, India for assisting me in many different ways during the four years of stay at ICGEB.

During my thesis write-up I came across a group of friends and colleagues who were willing to help me with references that I was not able to download online at ICGEB, and these are Mr. Mamane Nassirou Garba from CDC, Atlanta, Georgia, USA. Mr. Daniel Minja (Minjasen) when he was in Belgium, Ms. Suzie Rumisha from Swiss Tropical Institute, Switzerland and Dr. Boniface Rashina from Japan. I don't know how much I used to bother them but their cooperation and encouragements are cordially acknowledged.

During the four years of stay in India I came to realize that my PhD program is just a part of my entire journey of life. I came across many events that made me to be stronger than before! I met various people with various milieu of their life, their knowledgeable contribution to my life is acknowledged. I wish to extend my warmest thanks to all the staff members of Tanzanian Embassy, New Delhi, India for their constant help and moral support during my stay in India. I wish to thank all Tanzanian, Indian and other national's friends living in New Delhi for their moral support when I lost my father in between of my PhD programe. Their loving and fun environments for me to get through the difficult times are always acknowledged. I wish to extend my special thanks to my colleagues Drs. Stephen Magesa, Deudedit Ishengoma and driver Suds for their personal help during the entire period of my late father's funeral ceremony while I was away from Tanzania. I thank my Supervisor Prof. V.S. Chauhan for granting me two weeks leave and joined my family back home to sympathize with them during the hard time. His perspective regarding student's situation at various times is acknowledged. I acknowledge NIMR-Tanzania staff members, family-friends and relatives for their moral support to my entire family during the hard moment. May Almighty God rest his soul in peace.

My PhD degree was a dream of my parents. Special thanks to my parents for giving me formal and informal knowledge that gave me strength and courage of learning more. I have achieved many goals in my life through their experiences. Their unconditional support, strength and encouragements to me to pursue my interests even though my father is not alive at this moment are cordially acknowledged. I thank my late father for his moral support till the last day of his life. May Almighty God rest his soul in peace.

I am grateful to my sister Amina and my youngest brother Rauim who are pursuing their degrees here in India, their cherishing company made me feel at home. I wish them all the best in achieving their goals. This being the case I am proud of India for raising some members of my family with excellent education. My other two brothers, Salih and Abdul are cordially acknowledged for helping my mother while we are away from home, I am proud of my cousin sisters Safi and Husna who make my mother not to feel so lonely without me and my sister Amina.

I thank Dr. Baraka Kuguru for his help and encouragements during my PhD program.
I thank Mr. Bharat for the company and helpful non-scientific chats during tea times at ICGEB canteen.

I am grateful to the administrative and the library staff members for their concern and support they provided during my stay at ICGEB.

This thesis is the result of several years of work whereby I have been accompanied and supported by many people (many of them have not been mentioned here), though it is difficult to express my sincere gratitude to you it is my pleasure to have this opportunity to say “thank you all”.

Last but not the least, the ICGEB fellowship offered by Head Office, Trieste, Italy is gratefully acknowledged.

Mwanaidi Yahya Kafuye