ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Ever since I was at Porulur, a rural village at Dindigul District, I had been much fascinated by the hidden power and dormant talents of the women there. What attracted me most among the womenfolk at Porulur was their desire to organise themselves into a movement of liberation. Born and brought up in a town, I had lot of prejudices about rural women. Contrary to my presumption, I found women at Porulur were longing for freedom and emancipation. It became a deeper realization as I started my work with the Dalit women of Karisalpatty and Varusanadu area. It was indeed an eye-opener and it changed the course of my attitude, ambition, and activities. To the best of my abilities, I tried to live for the poor Dalit women and work with them to organise them into a movement. At the outset, I must acknowledge the women at Porulur, Karisalpatty, Varusanadu and Vathalagundu who inspired me to make a study of the process of empowering women.

Dr. M.A. Sudhir, my research guide who helped me to identify the deep seated desire in me to take up a study project of this type deserves sincere appreciation and thanks. I am ever grateful to him for his generous availability to clarify my learning and for his apt and creative suggestions. Teaching and non-teaching members of the Department of Applied Research are remembered for their support and encouragement.
Sr. Lucian, Sr. Elsy George (former provincials) and Sr. Felicia, Provincial of Madurai Province, Sisters of the Cross of Chavanod, who supported me and guided me all along to complete my research work. To them I owe my heartfelt thanks and gratitude. My heartfelt acknowledgement is due to my own congregation sisters at Porulur, Karisalpatty, and Vathalagundu, who accommodated in their respective communities to undertake my field study.

Tamil Nadu Social Service Society (TASOSS), Coimbatore Multipurpose Social Service Society (CMSSS), Dindigul Multipurpose Social Service Society (DMSSS), Madurai Multipurpose Social Service Society (MMSSS) - directors, field staff members and SHG members of Dindigul district are worthy of praise and thanks. They spared their precious time to share their views and reflections. Their simplicity, undaunted courage and commitment to socio-economic-politico-cultural liberation shall be always remembered by me.

Generous indeed was Maria Alphonse to offer creative suggestions and constructive criticisms from the beginning to the completion of my research. I do extend my sincere thanks to my beloved parents, family members and to my friends Annie Isabella, Jose, Jeya, Kala, Maharaja, Vimalda and other friends who showed lot of interest in my study.

Above all, I am grateful to God the Almighty for leading me in all the endeavours.

Hilaria Soundari, M.
