ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is pleasure for me to thank all those who have helped me in several ways during my involvement in this research work.

First of all I express my heartiest gratitude to my supervisor Dr. Manoj Kumar, Head Department of English, D.C.S.K. Postgraduate College, Mau, who has been very helpful during the supervision of this work. Despite his busy schedule he has generously given me sufficient time for the discussions from the inspection to the completion of this work. This work could not have been possible without his patient and sustained supervision.

Next, I express my heartiest gratitude to Dr. A.K. Mishra, Reader, Department of English, D.C.S.K. Postgraduate College, Mau, for having initiate me to pursue the doctoral work on The English Poetry of 1950’s.

I am directly indebted for this work to Dr. Rashiqa Riyaz, Reader, Department of English, D.C.S.K. Postgraduate College, Mau, for her valuable suggestions and co-operations.

I would like to express my profoundest gratitude to my parents Shri Keshav Dev Tharad and Smt. Kusum Devi Tharad and sisters Smt. Kalindi & Poonam for encouraging me to take up the work seriously. They have always been an everflowing source of inspirations, patience and encouragement to me.

I am thankful to the librarians of Central Library, B.H.U. National Library Kolkata and British Council Library, New Delhi for the books they lent me generously. I also take the opportunity of acknowledging my debt of gratitude to those writers and critics of English Literature whose works I have consulted and also used in my thesis.

Finally, I am grateful to Mr. Raj Kumar Singh, Azamgarh for his prompt and impeccable typing of the thesis.
