ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am deeply indebted to my thesis advisor Professor Saket Saurabh and co-advisor Professor Venkatesh Raman for their invaluable guidance which made this work possible.

I am extremely grateful to Professors V. Arvind, Kamal Lodaya, C. R. Subramaniam, R. Ramanujam, Meena Mahajan and Vikram Sharma for granting me an opportunity to learn from their vast knowledge and experience.

I will be forever grateful to Professor K. Muralikrishnan for his guidance during my undergraduate days, for inspiring me to take up research and for introducing me to the exciting world of Parameterized Complexity.

I am grateful to Professors Fedor Fomin, Gregory Gutin and Fabrizio Grandoni for their kind invitations to collaborate with their respective groups and for extremely enriching research visits. I would like to acknowledge the sources of funding for these visits, an NFR project on Network Searching, a Royal Society International (Indo-UK) Joint Project and a DST Indo-Swiss project. I would also like to acknowledge the funding from the Institute of Mathematical Sciences which has enabled me to travel and present my papers at various conferences.

I would like to thank Geevarghese Philip, Neeldhara Misra, Daniel Lokshtanov and Somnath Sikdar from whom I have learnt a lot during our discussions on specific problems as well as about research in general. I would also like to thank Pim Van’t Hof, Michal Pilipczuk, Mark Jones, Robert Crowston and Gabriele Muccia for making my research visits to Bergen and London extremely enjoyable. I am grateful to Manu Basavaraju for many an enlightening discussion as well as for the table tennis lessons. Special thanks go to R. Kavya for all the encouragement and motivation during the writing of this thesis. I am grateful to Aishwarya Cyriac, Yadu Vasudev, Karteek Sreenivasiah, Nitin Saurabh, Pranabendu Misra, Mrinal Kumar, Sreejith A. V., M. Praveen, Kunal Dutta, Mathew C. Francis, Gaurav Rattan, Fahad Panolan, Ashutosh Rai, Sudeshna Kolay, Syed Mohammed Meesum for always being open to discussions in matters relating to science or otherwise.

I am extremely grateful to R. Sriraman and Gayatri Ajay for all the excellent advice they have always given me and for being such inspiring figures. Finally, thank you Swathi Govindarajan for all the pizzas!
