ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The importance and usefulness of the problem that forms the basis of the present thesis was brought home to author's mind by his learned teacher and guide Dr. R.S. Saini, M.Sc., Ph.D. (Saugar), Ph.D. (Cambridge), F.R.E.S., F.Z.S., F.R.M.S., Department of Zoology, University of Saugar, Sagar. The work was undertaken on his initiation, and the author received from him continued guidance and encouragement throughout the course of this study, which he takes opportunity of gratefully acknowledging. The author tries in vain to find suitable words to express his sincere gratitude to Dr. R.S. Saini who took a lot of pains in critically perusing the final manuscript.

The author is also thankful to Dr. H.N. Bhargava Reader, Head, Department of Zoology, University of Saugar, for making the laboratory facilities available.

Among the many well wishers who have actively assisted the author at different stages of this study, he expresses his gratitude to them and specially to -

The Director, British Museum (Natural History) London for getting the insects species identified.

Prof. W.D. West, C.I.E., Sc. D., F.G.S., F.R.A., Head, Department of Applied Geology, University of Saugar for providing him the Dark-room facilities in his Department and to Dr. S.A. Faruqui and Dr. U.S. Gupta for help in photography.

Dr. Y.N. Sahai, Asstt. Prof. for providing library facilities.

Dr. M.M. Singh, Dr. R.N. Shukla, Mr. M.M. Ali, G.S. Parasher, Y.P. Saxena, R.C. Saxena and my all colleagues for sparing time in their busy schedule to help me in the preparation of this thesis.

Dr. V.N. Agrawal, Asstt. Prof. Applied Geology Department and Dr. G.L. Agrawal, Asstt. Prof. Chemistry Department for help and encouragement.

Mr. G.P. Rai and R.P. Patel for skilful typing.

Thanks are also due to the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research, India for award of a Junior Research Fellowship.

Last but not the least I thank my wife Mrs. Amita Agrawal for perpetual encouragement and devotion in periods of trial during the course of this work.
