ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It gives me great pleasure to place on record my sincere thanks and gratitude to several persons who have helped me in my research and writing the thesis.

I am grateful to my supervisor Dr. Anand Inbanathan, Associate Professor, Centre for Study of Social Change and Development, Institute for Social and Economic Change, Bangalore, whose guidance and cooperation, made the thesis possible. His encouragement and enriching ideas on the subject made this work more valuable. I owe him to a great deal for the support in professional as well as the personal aspect of my life. I would also like to thank Ms. Pratibha Inbanathan for her hospitality and continuous encouragement.

Many thanks are due to Professor N. Jayaram, Director, Institute for Social and Economic Change, Bangalore, former Directors Professor Gopal Kadekodi and Professor M. Govinda Rao, Institute for Social and Economic Change, for giving me an opportunity to carry out my research work at the institute. I am also thankful to the faculty, student community and administrative staff for their abundant support during the entire period of my stay at ISEC.

I owe sincere thanks to Professor G. K. Karanth, Head, Centre for Study of Social Change and Development, Institute for Social and Economic Change, Bangalore, whose insightful thoughts helped me in strengthening the thesis. This is an occasion to express my sincere gratitude to him and Ms. Rajalaxmi Karanth for their constant support in my personal life.

It was a privilege to have had Dr. N. Sivanna and Dr. Supriya Roychoudhury as my Doctoral committee members at the Institute. Their constant criticisms, comments and suggestions were extremely helpful. I would like to thank Professor Abdul Aziz and Professor D. Rajasekhar for their suggestions and comments, which further enhanced the quality of the thesis. Sincere thanks are due to Dr. K. G. Gayathri Devi, Dr. Manohar Yadav, and Dr. V. Ramaswamy of ISEC for their support and encouragements to finish the work.

I sincerely thank Mr. K. S. Narayana of Ph.D. section, Mr. Krishna Chandran and Mr. Satish Kamath of the Computer Section, and the Library staff of the Institute for the kind support and cooperation extended to me.

I am most greatful and indebted to the panchayat members of Govindpur, Saptasajya, Talabarakot, and Beltikiri, and the local elites for sharing their time, beliefs and experiences with me. I am indebted to Mr. Ananta Charan Mohanty, Headman of Nagiapasi village (Beltikiri Gram Panchayat) for rendering me support and making me a part of his family during my fieldwork. My sincere thanks are due to Mr. Dillip Kumar Mohanty and his family of Nagiapasi village, who accommodated me in their home during my fieldwork.
I thank many of my student friends at the Institute for their constant help, motivation and support. It is not possible to name each and every one. However, I take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks to Kashi Bhai, Milu Apa, Gagan, Rajib Bhai, Amit, Bhanumurthy, Mini, Deepthi, Dukhi, Ashish, Kshyama, Kannan, Nazrul, Mahesh, Sridevi, Anand, and Hurshi, whose company I enjoyed during my stay at the institute. Special thanks are due to some of my young friends Badri, Paulomi, Sarala, Skylab, Tunga, Satyasiba, Geetanjoy, who extended great help during the days of my thesis submission.

I am indebted to my parents, who took all the trouble to accompany me for the completion of my thesis. Without their help, it would not have been possible to complete the work. I thank my in-laws for their constant support, encouragement and motivation to complete the work. It is time to recall Pradosh Bhai and Geeta Bhauja, Chita and Munmoon of the Banaras Hindu University, for their encouragement and support.

Special thanks are due to my sister Sudeshna and brother-in-law Pratyush, who always exhorted me to finish my thesis.

I will not be doing myself justice if I fail to acknowledge the considerable contributions of my husband Satyapriya Rout, whose unfailing support and encouragement, both in my professional and personal life, made the work possible.

Last but not the least, I would like to show my affection to our son Pranjal, who suffered along with me during the final days of my thesis submission. It is his patience and endurance, which made my work easier.
