Basis of UK statute law applicable to the armed forces is generally one of imposing specific duties with attendant penalties for failure to comply rather than of granting rights.

- GEORGE NOLTE

The Crown is not Sovereign, nor is either House of Parliament, still less are the ministers or servants through whom the Crown conducts its executive business of the Government; but each of these stands in established relations to the other and to the general body of citizens, and of these relations some are fixed by law and some by custom.

- WILLIAM R. ANSON

The rule of conduct is transcendent law

- MANUSMRITI

A wise king can make the poor and miserable elements of his society happy and prosperous, but a wicked king will surely destroy the most prosperous of loyal elements of his kingdom.

- KAUTILYA

All pervading function of the head of State, for which he is created, is the protection of his subjects.

- MANU