CONTENTS

Preface i-iv
Acknowledgments v-vi
Abbreviations vii-x
Tables of Cases xi-x

CHAPTER I: INTRODUCTION 1-40

1.2 The Status in India
1.3 The Doctrine of Presidential Pleasure
1.4 Nature and Scope of Tenure and Termination
   1.4.1 Tenure
   1.4.2 Termination
   1.4.3 Processual Justice
   1.4.4 Opportunity to show cause integral to processual justice in the Defence forces
1.5 Hypothesis
1.6 Object of the Study
1.7 Significance of the Study
1.8 Research Questions
1.9 Research Methodology
1.10 Framework of the Study

CHAPTER II: EVOLUTION OF LAW AND CONCEPT OF TENURE AND TERMINATION IN DEFENCE FORCES 41-98

Prelude
2.1 Ancient Period
   2.1.1 Dharma, Swadharma and Raj Dharma
   2.1.2 Termination of Service and Concept of Danda
2.1.3 Rule on Tenured Appointments
2.1.4 Impact of Four Varna and the Ashrams on the Law of Service in the Defence forces
2.1.5 Removal from Service on grounds of Displeasure

2.2 Roman Period
2.2.1 Early History
2.2.2 Administration of the Roman Army
2.2.3 Role of Defence forces in the Roman Republic
2.2.4 Law of the Roman People
2.2.5 The law of Twelve Tables and the Service in the Defence forces
2.2.6 Contribution of the Roman Jurists

2.3 Medieval Period
2.3.1 Administration of the Defence forces during Seventh to Eleventh centuries A.D.
2.3.2 Administration of the Defence forces during the reign of Mahmud Ghaznavi
2.3.3 Administration after the reign of Mahmud Ghaznavi
2.3.4 Moderation in Defence service administration during the reign of Akbar
2.3.5 Governance of the Defence forces during Mughal Empire
   2.3.5.1 Administration as per the tenets of Quran
   2.3.5.2 Fundamental Rules of tenure and termination
   2.3.5.3 Salient Aspects

2.4 Modern Period
2.4.1 Origin of the Indian Defence forces and the Law of their tenures of service and termination

2.4.2 Introduction of the English Service law and procedure on tenure and termination

2.4.3 East India Company Mutiny Act

2.4.4 Tenure and termination in Presidency Armies

2.4.5 Tenure and termination under the Government of India Act, 1833, and the “Articles of War.”

2.4.6 Tenure and termination in the Defence Forces under the Crown

2.4.7 Amendment of “Articles” In 1894 with respect to Their Service aspect

2.4.8 Tenure under the Indian Army Act, 1911

2.4.9 Effect of subsequent legislations

2.4.10 Indianisation of the Services and the tenure of service under the State

2.4.11 The Auspicious Hour

2.4.12 Tenure of service in the Indian Navy

2.4.13 Tenure of service in the Indian Air Force

Appraisal

CHAPTER III: TENURE, TERMINATION AND PROCESSUAL JUSTICE IN DEFENCE FORCES – A COMPARATIVE VIEW

Prelude

3.1 Service Tenures in the United Kingdom and the United States of America – A General View

3.1.1 The Development of Military Law in The United Kingdom

3.1.2 Tenure under the law of defence forces in the United Kingdom
3.1.3 Termination under the law of defence forces in the United kingdom
3.1.4 Processual justice under the British law
3.1.5 The doctrine of pleasure - the Royal Prerogative
3.1.6 The command of the Royal Forces
3.1.7 Administration of justice in the Royal Defence Forces

3.2 The ‘Tenure’ ‘Termination’ and the Processual Justice in the U.S. Defence Forces
3.2.1 The Evolution of the U.S. Military Law
3.2.2 The ‘Tenure’ and ‘Termination’ in the U.S Defence Forces
3.2.3 Processual Justice in the U.S. Defence Forces

3.4 Indian View on The U.S. Law of Services

Appraisal

CHAPTER IV: CUSTOMS OF SERVICE AND THE PRINCIPLES OF TENURE, TERMINATION AND PROCESSUAL JUSTICE IN DEFENCE FORCES

Prelude

4.1 Customs in the Defence Forces
4.1.1 Customs in Relation to the Tenure and Termination
4.1.2 The Customs on tenure of Service - an Imperial approach
4.1.3 The ‘Customs’ of service
4.1.4 The ‘Customs’ of War
4.1.5 The Defence Services Regulations
4.1.6 Customs and the Departmental orders and Instructions
4.1.7 Reproof
4.1.8 Tenure and Termination as per Customs and Usage in the Navy
4.1.9 Usage on Recruitment and Removal
4.1.10 Indelible Impressions of customs and Usage on the Defence services and their terminologies
4.1.11 Custom and Usage on Award of ‘Punishments’ in the Defence Forces.
4.1.12 Customs and Usage of the Air Force

4.2 Principles of Tenure, Termination and Processual Justice
4.2.1 Principle of audi alteram partem – concept in India
4.2.2 Misconduct an offence under Defence Law - a ground for termination of service
4.2.3 Modified Fundamental rights for defence forces – breach a ground for removal
4.2.4 Validity of termination proceedings in respect of those not directly subject to the Defence Law
4.2.5 Validity of termination where offence is time barred
4.2.6 Processual Justice in Defence forces a reality and not a myth
4.2.7 Termination simpliciter or punitive dismissal
4.2.8 Removal administratively when specific offence and punishment provided under the Act.
4.2.9 Justiciability of the Doctrine of Pleasure – principles enunciated
4.2.10 Promotion to substantive rank and processual justice
4.2.11 Termination of service “administratively” despite “not guilty” verdict by court martial

4.2.12 Other principles

Appraisal

CHAPTER V: LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS FOR THE TENURE, TERMINATION AND PROCESSUAL JUSTICE IN THE DEFENCE FORCES

Prelude

5.1 Indian Defence Forces – British Regime
   5.1.1 Articles of War
   5.1.2 The Indian Army Act, 1911
   5.1.3 Status Post Independence

5.2 Legislations relating to the defence forces of the Union – A category of special laws

5.3 The Army Act, 1950 (Act No 46 of 1950)
   5.3.1 The tenure and termination vis-a-vis the conditions of service under the Army Act
   5.3.2 Relevance of provisions not directly related to the tenure and termination
   5.3.3 Regulation of the conditions of service
   5.3.4 Military Law as interpreted by the Supreme Court

5.4 The Navy Act, 1957 (Act No 62 of 1957)
   5.4.1 Modification of the Fundamental Rights in respect of the persons subject to the Navy Act
   5.4.2 The law governing the commission, appointment and enrolment in the Navy
   5.4.3 Liability and tenure of service of persons subject to the Navy Act
   5.4.4 ‘Termination’, ‘Dismissal’ and ‘Discharge’ under the Navy Act
5.4.5 Service privileges and immunities
5.4.6 The provisions relating to the processual justice under the Navy Act
5.4.7 Investigation of the charge/charges by the Commanding Officer as a part of the processual justice under the Navy Act

5.5 The Air Force Act, 1950 (Act No 45 of 1950)
5.5.1 Tenure, termination and conditions of service Under the Air Force Act
5.5.2 Law relating to the processual justice in respect of the Air Force personnel

Appraisal

CHAPTER VI: CONSTITUTIONAL INTERPRETATION OF TENURE, TERMINATION AND PROCESSUAL JUSTICE IN DEFENCE FORCES

Prelude
6.1 The general concept
6.2 Civil Servant Distinguished from Defence Personnel
6.3 The service tenures and their termination - the constitutional point of view
6.4 Doctrines on the tenure, termination and processual justice in the Defence Forces
6.4.1 The doctrine of (the Presidential) pleasure - a legacy of common law
6.4.2 Doctrine of pleasure: President as the Supreme Commander of the Defence Forces - a perspective
6.4.3 Legislative Power subject to the Doctrine of Pleasure
6.4.4 Supremacy of the Doctrine
6.4.5 Doctrine of Pleasure - Its Implications
6.4.6 Article 311 as a safeguard on Pleasure Doctrine
6.4.7 Exceptions to Article 311
6.4.8 Pleasure Doctrine in respect of Public Corporations
6.4.9 Position prior and subsequent to the year 1994 with respect to the defence personnel
6.4.10 Position with respect to the defence personnel as finally settled by the judiciary
6.4.11 Restrictions on pleasure
6.4.12 Suggestions on the doctrine of pleasure with respect of the defence forces.
6.5 Constitutional provisions and the exercise of disciplinary powers
6.6 Termination Simpliciter, camouflage and Lifting the Veil
6.7 Law on tenures in Defence Forces and scope of judicial review
6.8 Doctrine of Continuous Officitation
6.9 The Doctrine of the ‘Principles of Natural Justice’
6.10 Appeal from Caesar to Caesar’s wife
6.11 Courts as the final arbiter

Appraisal

CHAPTER VII : CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTIONS 373-392
BIBLIOGRAPHY 393-416
APPENDIX 417-556