ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

While trying to complete this present thesis, I have received many helps and cooperation from various persons directly or indirectly. After all it is a matter of great pleasure for me to acknowledge them. First of all, I am indebted to my supervisor, Prof. K. Saratchandra Singh, Department of Anthropology, Manipur University for his inspiring and untiring guidance, creative suggestions and constructive criticism.

My special thanks also goes to Dr. Somokanto Singh, Superintendent of J.N. Hospital for permitting me to do data collection in his esteem hospital and Dr. H. Kumar Singh, HOD, Pediatrics Department, Jawaharlal Nehru Hospital, Porompat for providing me necessary facilities and guidance during the data collection.

I also take the opportunity to extend my sincere thanks to Shri A. Brajakumar Sharma, retired Senior Grade Lecturer of Statistics, D.M. College of Science and my friend, Ph. Kamala Devi, Part-time Lecturer of Statistics, D.M. College of Science for their untiring help in carrying out the statistical analysis of the present investigation.

I am thankful to Dr. T. Shyamacharan Singh, Assistant professor, Department of Anthropology, Manipur University for his valuable advice in searching out the relevant papers to my work and providing me some useful journals.

My gratitude also goes to the doctors namely Miss Rozy, Miss Jubie and Mr. Chourjit, and the nurses specially sister Miss Ranjita Devi and Mrs. Nadira, the training students and attendants of the Maternity Ward for their kind co-operation and hospitality during the time of data-collection.

I am also grateful to my friends namely sister R.K. Meena, Miss K. Renu, Mrs. Reena Yumnam and Miss Th. Prameswori Devi for their timely help inspite of their heavy engagements.
My thanks are extended to my elder and younger brothers, Bhogen Singh and Doren Singh and younger sister-in-law, Sanayezima for their help in data entry and computer typing.

Last but not the least, I owe everything to my beloved mother, brothers sisters and sisters-in-law for their moral and financial support in various ways during the entire course of my research work.
