ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am highly indebted to my revered teacher Dr. A.K. Awasthi for being so kind as to supervise my thesis. His guidance and painstaking effort in going through the manuscript have helped me greatly and has made it possible for me to give proper form to my thesis. His thought provoking discussion has been of considerable help to me at every stage of the work.

It is my pleasant duty to thank the Jawaharlal Nehru Library, Sagar and the British council Library, Bhopal for extending to me the necessary facilities for carrying out the present research work.

I am grateful to my father, Shri A.P. Dubey, mother Smt. Rama Dubey, mother-in-law, Smt. Shalini Gubrele, brother-in-law Shri Shashank Gubrele and Shailesh Gubrele, husband Shri Shardendu Gubrele, maternal uncle Shri Vishal Awasthi and sister Pragyasa and Shilpa for being a constant source of encouragement and inspiration during the research work. My three-year-old son, Kaustubh deserves a special mention here. His appreciation of mother's engagement with serious studies has an emotional significance. I am indebted to him for his understanding at such tender age.
I am also grateful to all other members of my family and relatives.

Lastly I also owe my debt to my colleagues and the staff members of the Department of English for their cooperation, which enabled me to carry on this work in a trouble free manner.

Above all I bow my head in reverence unto God whose grace has been a constant source of inspiration to me.
