ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In the completion of the present work I am indebted to the guidance and the help of various scholars, teachers, institutes, librarians and friends. I think it my pleasant duty to record their gratitude. In the first place I owe profound thanks to Prof. Muhammad Ishaq Khan, renowned scholar of socio-religious history of India, presently Dean, Faculty of Social Sciences, for taking me under his guidance at the initial stage of my research. His constant encouragement has become a source of inspiration in my academic endeavours.

Dr. Abdul Qayyum Rafiqi, Professor of Islamic History, had been kind enough when he accepted the request, made to him, about guiding me in Ph.D. His keen interest, meticulous reading of the manuscript and substantive discussions and suggestions became instrumental to improve the quality of the present work. I express my heartfelt thanks to him for his erudite, conscientious and efficacious guidance.

The other scholars and teachers whom I occasionally consulted and got benefited by their suggestions include specially Prof. G.R. Malik, Head, Department of English and Dean Humanities, Kashmir University, Srinagar, Prof. A.H. Ansari, Research Centre, Muhammad Ibn-e Salih University, Riyadh, late Prof. S.A. Kamali, ex-Director, Shah Wali-u Allah Academic Unit, Aligarh Muslim University, Aligarh, late Prof. Zia al-Hasan Faruqi, ex-Director, Zakir Husain Institute of Islamic Studies, New Delhi, late Prof. Majid Ali Khan, ex-Head, Department of Islamic Studies, Jamia Millia Islamia, New Delhi, Dr. Muhammad Ashraf Wani, Reader in History, Dr. Nazir Ahmad Dhar, Senior Lecturer, Department of linguistics, Kashmir University, Srinagar and Dr. M. S. Alum Qasimi, Department of Theology, Aligarh Muslim University, Aligarh. My special thanks are due to them all. The keen interest shown by my worthy colleagues, Dr. Hamidu'llah Marazi and Dr. Naseem Ahmad Shah, Dr. G. N. Khaki and our ex-Head of the Department, Dr. S. Y. Gilani, regarding the successful completion of my present research work is never ignorable for which I express my sincere gratitude to all of them.

It would be unjust if I would not express my gratitude to Dr. M. M. Alam, Chairman, Institute of Objective Studies, Delhi for his assistance and the librarians of Institute of Islamic Studies, Aligarh Muslim University, Aligarh, Jamia Hamdard University, Delhi, Zakir Husain Library, Jamia Millia Islamia, Delhi and Usmania University library, Hyderabad for making the relevant research material available to me.

Last but not least, I thank the library staff of my institute and its senior research scholars who kept always their help at my disposal. Mr. Javid Ahmad Bhat, Universal Computer's, Sadrabal, Srinagar also deserves my special thanks for his careful and fine printing of the manuscript.
