ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I feel privileged to acknowledge my gratitude to all those who have contributed directly or indirectly in the completion of this thesis. First of all, I am grateful to my mentor, Dr. Brajesh Sawhney, Professor, Department of English, Kurukshetra University, Kurukshetra, whose valuable guidance and continuous encouragement made me take on this challenging research topic with confidence. In fact, my interest in feminism owes a lot to his teaching of literary theories during my M.Phil. programme in the Department.

I owe my indebtedness to Prof. Sunita Siroha, Chairperson, Dept. of English, Kurukshetra University, Kurukshetra for her constant help and encouragement during my research. My thanks are due to all the faculty members of Department of English, Kurukshetra University, Kurukshetra for their kind support.

My thanks are also due to Prof. Alice Ridout, the President of Doris Lessing Society, Algoma University, Canada for her generous help in sending some important articles and books on Doris Lessing and also for making me connect with renowned critics and scholars of Doris Lessing all over the world. I owe my special thanks to my Irish friend Oran Ryan for his constant help by sending useful books on Doris Lessing.

I wish to extend my thanks to all the members of The British Library, New Delhi, Jawaharlal Nehru University Library, New Delhi, Panjab University Library, Chandigarh, Jawaharlal Nehru Library at Kurukshetra University, Kurukshetra for the invaluable research material provided by them.

I place on record my gratitude to my parents for their words of blessings and encouragement.

This project would never have materialized without the blessings of Almighty God, for which I bow my head in humble thanks and prayers.
