ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

At the very outset, as a student of anthropology writing about his special field, I gratefully acknowledge the help and advice of a number of friends and scholars in the preparation of this thesis. Moreover, I feel great pleasure to take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks and obligations to them.

I am especially and deeply indebted to Dr B.M. Mukherjee for his valuable and painstaking guidance, instructions and suggestions in every step and supervision during the course of this research in particular which has really enriched in shaping the present study and without which this work would not have accomplished. In addition, I owe him all my spiritual discipline that I ought to owe a true 'Guru'. I feel myself very much fortunate to find him as a guide.

I also owe a debt of special gratitude to Dr Ch. Budhi Singh, Head of the Department of Anthropology, Manipur University, who has helped me in convincing my supervisor at the time of Ph.D. Registration as well as for his precious part in encouraging me from time to time to complete the course.

I am grateful to Shri W. Nabakumar Singh, Assistant Professor, Department of Anthropology, Manipur University, who provided me the facilities of the Departmental Library and also for his academic help and cooperation.

I pay my great tribute to Professor Gangmumei Kabui, Department of History, Manipur University, who had suggested me to work on Tarao tribe. For this, I shall ever remain thankful to him.

Acknowledgement is also due to Mr. Mathangmanai Rumshe and M. Bejwan and Chanasa More (all Taraos) — my hosts during my field work stay and for their family hospitality extend to me. I wish to owe to M. Koba Tarao (Kurung of Leishokching), K. Leipa Tarao (a prominent person of Leishokching village), K. Thampong Tarao (Kurung of Tarao Khullen), and K. Solomon Tarao (Kurung of Khuringmul village) from whom I collected most useful materials. Through Kurung of each village I could sit with a number of old persons for investigating the traditional norms and customs in the recent past. I am thankful and obliged to them. Again I put my sincere gratitude to Tarao youths who helped me as my intimate friends everyday and have done much to reduce my sufferings in the field. The value of their contributions is unmeasurable. Besides, I must also be content with a general acknowledgement to many villagers of each village who provided rich field materials to me.

A similar vote of thanks goes to Mr. Anoubam Somorendro Sharma and Rajkumar Chiranjit Singh who laid down a considerable amount of help in painstaking job of typing and drawing sketches. In addition, Mr. Maibam Shamden Singh who prepared the first type draft with patience is also duly indebted.

I also wish to express my thanks to the students of Anthropology Department who regularly inquired and motivated to improve my work on the one hand and encouraged me to furnish soon on the other. Indeed, I thank all the staff members of both teaching and non-teaching for their mutual supports in my work.

I further lay down my gratitude to Dr B.M. Mukherjee, my guide, who went through patiently every page of my draft manuscript from the first hand-scrawled versions through final galleys. He has shared of what needed to be done throughout in every detail of its execution, fertile in suggestion, and vigilant in the detection of error. For which I am extremely grateful to him.

I record my deep sense of obligations to my mother and my parted father who struggles hard to push me up to the possible position. There is my continuing gratitude to my wife and son for their great patience, helpfulness and encouragements.

In brief, I must make grateful acknowledgement to those persons who rendered me their valuable helps in anyway.

Lastly, I must show my gratitudes to the Manipur University for allowing me to work as Research Scholar and for the facilities given to me during my research course.
