ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is my pleasant duty to put on record my deep sense of gratitude to Professor V.C. Misra, Head of the Department of General and Applied Geography, University of Saugar. The present work owes much to his constant encouragement and the facilities provided by him.

Dr. R.S. Dube, Reader, Department of General and Applied Geography, University of Saugar, not only supervised the work and helped and guided me in all possible ways, it was he who suggested the problem in the first place and underscored its significance. I can not adequately thank him.

Professor M. Shafi of the Aligarh Muslim University gave me a number of valuable suggestions and clarified many concepts. I am beholden to his kindness.

Other teachers in the Department, particularly Dr. S.K. Sharma, helped me in so many ways. So did my fellow researchers Dr. Peter Charan, Smt. Archana Bhargava and Smt. Pushpa Agnihotri. I am grateful to all of them. Sri Ajit Jain helped me in the finalisation of maps.

I am grateful to Sri J.C. Sharma, Deputy Director, Social Welfare and Panchayat Raj, Madhya Pradesh and Sri M.S. Siddiqui, I.A.S., who was the Settlement Officer of Saugar during the period of this research, for the help they provided in the collection of material.

The Indian Council of Social Science Research helped me with a contingency grant.

My indebtedness to my parents, particularly to my mother who came all the way to help, can not be expressed in words.

In the end, I remember with heavy heart my father-in-law, the late Sri V.C. Sharma. He inspired me to become a researcher but did not live to see the outcome.
