PREFACE

Since long ago, it has been investigated that urban people are more maladjusted than rural people. Several factors such as more stressful conditions, anxiety provoking situations and unemployment etc. are responsible for it.

The present study was conducted to study the psychosocial adjustment among rural and urban neurotics.

With deep sense of gratitude, I convey my thanks to my Supervisor, Dr. Novratten Sharma, Lecturer, Department of Psychology, M.D.U. Rohtak under whose valuable guidance present study was designed and completed.

I further express my heartfelt thanks to my co-supervisor, Dr. D.K. Puri, Lecturer, Deptt. of Psychiatry, Medical College and Hospital, Rohtak, who identified the neurotic patients for the study. He also read the rough draft of the dissertation and gave his matured suggestions.

I am also thankful to other doctors in Psychiatric Deptt. for helping me in data collection.
I am also thankful to Dr. I.S. Muhar, Professor, Department of Psychology, M.D.U., Rohtak for his concrete suggestions and encouragement at various stages of the study.

I further express my great indebtedness to Dr. (Mrs.) Sunita Malhotra, Reader, Head, Department of Psychology in M.D.U. Rohtak for providing the facilities for the present study.

Next, I place my deep sense of gratitude to the various respondents, without whose kind co-operation, the present study would never had been possible.

I would like to express my thanks to all my friends who came forward to help me at various stages of my work.

Lastly I am thankful to M/s Bhalla Typewriters, Delhi Road, Rohtak for neat and accurate typing.
