Acknowledgement

Undertaking this research work has been an incredible and unique experience to me. A good many number of people are worthy acknowledging for their invaluable support and encouragement. The list is so long that it might prove difficult to name each one of them. However, a few of them are mentioned in this page just as a representative of others.

First and foremost, I thank "God almighty" for his blessing in making this endeavour a success.

No words can express my sincere gratitude to my supervising Teacher Dr. Immanuel Thomas, Professor and Former head of Department of Psychology, University of Kerala, whose sincerity, flexibility, and professionalism guided me throughout this work. His valuable suggestions, constructive criticisms and constant encouragement kept me going on with this research work. I am particularly grateful for the time he spent teaching me the various statistical procedures and how to make sense out of data.

I was deeply challenged by his willingness to help in my research work in the midst of a very hectic career and household responsibilities. He is a worthy role model of a responsible research guide and teacher.

I also express my gratitude to his family members for their kindness, acceptance, and cooperation. They made me feel at home in (India) away from home in (Kenya). May God bless them mightily and extend their boundaries in this life.
I am immensely thankful to all the faculty members, Research scholars, M.Phil students and masters students of the Department of Psychology, University of Kerala, Kariavattom campus for their kindness and friendly attitudes they showed to me as we shared the learning resources in the Department.

I wish to acknowledge my indebtedness to the Ministry of Higher Education, Kenya and the Indian High Commission (Kenya) for selecting me as a research fellow.

I express my very sincere gratitude to the government of India for awarding me a scholarship under the Indo-Kenyan Cultural Exchange Programme (CEP) to pursue higher studies in India.

I owe special thanks to the Trivandrum regional office of the Indian Council for Cultural Relations. Shri. M.R. Krishnamoorthy (Sir), who was the director of the regional office, was like a father to me in India. His wise fatherly counsel, patience, and encouragement will always be remembered by me. He showed a lot of confidence in my abilities as a research scholar. He always made foreign students to feel respected, valued, accepted and in the right place. He constantly declared that he saw a bright future for Kenya through me. This left me thinking of myself not just as a research scholar only but as a Kenyan leader with great potential to make a lasting impact in the country's education sector. Sir may the 'almighty God' give you long life on earth to interact with many international scholars sent to you by the nations of the world. For you are the right person for the ICCR office.
I record my sincere gratitude to all the institutional heads of Nairobi city primary schools, and the teachers and the pupils of the institutions who co-operated with me in the collection of data for the study.

I also express my gratitude to the following research scholars for their assistance and a lot of moral support. They include Rajeswari (Tamil Department), Manju (Geology Department), Sidhu (Economic Department), Meera (Department of Law), Shiny (Political Science Department), Raj (biochemistry Department) Jyoth (Department of Zoology) and Chinu Chacko (Department of Biochemistry).

Special appreciation and gratitude to Pastor Suresh Cherian, Associate Pastor Biji Enos and all the members of highlands Pilgrims Church, Trivandrum City, for their prayers, love and moral support during my stay in Kerala state.

My sincere and heart felt thanks are also due to Evangelist Joe Joseph, his family and all the Kazhakuttom P.M.G. Sunday evening fellowship members, for their continued prayers, encouragements, and moral support during my period of study in Kerala University.

I pay special tribute to my late parents Mr. & Mrs. Jeremiah. M. Ikiao, who reared me in an atmosphere of unconditional love, care and support. They taught me how to be courageous in life and to love humanity regardless of religion, creed and race. They also served as role models of how to be honest, fair and frank with other people and myself. Though they graduated to heaven, I fondly remember them for what they were to me. For nothing can replace them in this life.
Above all, I wish to thank and honor my very dear husband Felix (Governor), for his love, patience, support and willingness to develop me to the fullest of my potentials in all ways. He is God ordained spouse to me. Thanks to our children Nehemiah and Queen Esther, my very dear and supportive nephews Joseph and Michael and very patient cousin Mary and all the members of my family for their whole-hearted support at every stage of my research work.

Special appreciation to all the members of Madhurima Softek, Ambalathinkara, Kazhakuttom, for their proficiency in typing and formatting this work.
