ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

First of all, my thanks are due to all the subjects who helped me in various testing situations of the present study. Without their friendliness and cooperation, it would not have been possible for me to conduct this study.

I am deeply indebted to my Supervisor, Dr. Rajesh Khanna who guided me throughout the present study and gave his valuable suggestions, enabling me to complete this work efficiently.

I am thankful to Dr. Sunita Malhotra, Reader and Head of the Department of Psychology, for her interest in the present study and for all the official facilities provided by her.

I am grateful to my family members who provided me with all the financial and moral support.

Finally, I am also indebted to all others who helped me in presenting this work in the present form.
