Acknowledgement

This thesis has been very fruitful endeavor, given the contemporary nature of the subject discussed and also its increasing relevance in times to come. I would like to extend my gratitude to several people, who have guided and supported me at each and every stage of this project.

First and Foremost, I am deeply indebted to my Guide Dr. J. U. Nanavay, whose constant supervision and motivation has brought out the best in me, which reflects in the findings of my study. Without his constant encouragement and guidance, this project would not have seen the light of the day.

In addition, I would also like to extend my gratitude to my father Mr. Murlidhar Hemnani, my mother Mrs. Bharatiben Hemnani, and my husband Mr. Vinod Motiyani—who have stood by my side all through and whose enthusiasm, care, concern and energy that kept me going all through.

Last but not the least my thanks to God, who has been my biggest strength and support system in my entire endeavor and for making me the person that I am.
