The concern with children is not time bound. Although all the periods have witnessed the importance given to children, yet the extent of present time concern with their welfare seems to be unprecedented. As far the etiology of childhood problems is concerned, a number of theorists with different theoretical orientations have forwarded different notions. Freudian and behaviourist views that emotional problems among children are strictly a matter of upbringing and learning are largely accepted even today. In both these role of parents becomes rather conspicuous. It is generally believed that parents contribute significantly in the healthy/unhealthy development of children. In a highly competitive society the material assets of parents do become instrumental in the achievement and ultimately the mental health status of a child.

However the present study is a humble attempt to explore some of the parental factors and their impact on children. Research, even when conducted by an individuals is a team work and no research activity can be accomplished without support and help from number of people.

I express my deep sense of gratitude to my guide Dr. (Mrs.) Ravinder, Lecturer, Deptt. of Psychology, M.D. University, Rohtak, who encouraged and guided me in my work. Her profound knowledge of the subject has been a source of great inspiration to me.

I extend my sincere thanks to Dr. Rajbir Hooda, Professor and Head of Psychology Deptt., Dr. (Mrs.) Sunita Malhotra, Reader and ex-head of the Deptt., Dr. I.S. Muhar, Professor, Deptt. of psychology, M.D. University, Rohtak, for providing all the necessary facilities and their encouragement to me in the department.
I feel obliged to express my heartiest thanks to the principals of the schools who permitted me to collect my data in their schools. I also express my thanks to the children and their parents, for the absolute cooperation and patience through the long and tiring interviews sessions. In addition to spending their time, they even agreed to conduct the interviews at their homes.

I am particularly thankful to the staff of the university library for full cooperation in making me available the books and journals needed. My thanks are also due to Gandhi Computers, Delhi Road, Rohtak for the typing of the dissertation.
