ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I feel very humble and grateful while acknowledging my indebtedness to Dr. Radhey Shyam, my supervisor who captained by initiation into the field of research and always stimulated me to preserve through the difficult phases of this investigation. His sagacious guidance, sustained encouragement and friendly support enabled to accomplish this thesis.

I owe my thanks to Dr. Amrita Yadav, Head, Department of Psychology for her affectionate words and sympathetic support whenever sought.

I am much beholden to Prof. Rajbir Hooda who was gracious enough to spare his valuable time to go through my work at all the stages. He is an eminent scholar and most proficient in the field of neuropsychology. I found in him the spirit of an appreciating observer, who lets things take their own course and appreciates when he finds them attaining their cherished shape.

I am also grateful to all other teaching and non-teaching staff of the department who helped me a lot at various stages of the study. The research was supported, in part, by the University Grants Commission No. F. 8-7/97 (NR) to the Principal, Govt. P.G. College, Bhiwani (Haryana), so acknowledged with thanks.

I also record my sincere thanks to the principals of various schools/colleges who permitted me to collect data in their institutions and also my friends and colleagues in these schools/colleges who extended every possible help in the collection of data. My heartiest thanks to Mrs. Suman Ramawat of Government Girls Senior Secondary School, Bhiwani, Mrs. Anju Chandna of Halwasiya Vidyavikash, Bhiwani and my brother Parveen Kumar of Government Senior Secondary School, Dighal who helped during the course of data collection.
My thanks are ineffable to Satish and Seema whose constant help and countenances kept me steady on path. “Pinki” of ‘Pinki Printers and Electrocopier, Bhiwani’ also deserves special note of thanks for taking pains to type the manuscript, without any error, in a neat and presentable manner.

My heart is full of reverence for my “Mamaji” who is a great source of inspiration. He not only understood and encouraged my passion of research but also helped me chisel and smoothen my work. I feel overwhelmed when I think of his enthusiasm and ever-readiness to go out of his way to help me accomplish my dreams.

Finally, I wish to acknowledge the invaluable contribution of my wife Urmil, who maintained good spirits during the strain of my preoccupation with the investigation. She sacrificed her valuable time to assist me in my work; I am deeply indebted to my children Hanu Priya and Niloy, who had often been neglected by both of us and endured my frequent evening absences from family. In this work, as in any new work, there has been one percent inspiration and 99 percent perspiration. The perspiration has been mine, but the inspiration I owe to my late sister Rajbala. In her loving memory, I dedicate this work.

November, 26, 1999

VISHWANAND