Acknowledgement

I am obliged to the authorities of Dr. Hari Singh Gour Vishwavidyalaya, Sagar for giving me an opportunity to take up this research work.

The thesis entitled The Gandhian Movement and Constructive Programmes in Madhya Pradesh (1920-1947 A.D.) has been supervised by Dr. B.B. Srivastava, Professor and Head, Department of History and Dean, Faculty of Social Sciences, Dr. H.S. Gour Vishwavidyalaya, Sagar. I am thankful to him for his constant interest and his help was a great source of inspiration for this work.

I also express a deep sense of gratitude to the other staff members of the Department of History. Their valuable support and co-operation made this research work possible.

I am highly grateful to the authorities of National Archives of India, Nehru Memorial Museum and Library, New Delhi, Government of Madhya Pradesh and Maharashtra for allowing me access to their records.

I am thankful to the staff of the Jivaharlal Nehru Library, Dr. Hari Singh Gour Vishwavidyalaya, Sagar for their help.

Besides, I owe to my parents, who have always been a constant source of inspiration in my life. Above all, I thank to Almighty without His grace this work would not have come into being.
