ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This research has been long in development. I would like to thank very sincerely all the interviewed men and women of India and Spain for their extraordinary cooperation. For obvious reasons they have to remain anonymous.

I am extremely grateful to my guide, Dr. Manubhai Makwana, Professor Dr. B. R. Ambedkar Chair, Department of Sociology, Gujarat University, Ahmedabad, who undertook to guide me through the remainder of my thesis after the sad demise of Late Dr. A. R. Shah. Dr. Makwana's help and support have been invaluable. This work would have been impossible without his guidance.

This specific work began in discussions, questions and clarifications with Dr. Jerome Joseph, chairman of the Industrial Relations area of the Indian Institute of Management, Ahmedabad, who first led me to find the main theme of the project.

I particularly acknowledge Late Professor Arvind R. Shah, Director of the Academic Staff College of the Gujarat University, for sharing with me his appreciation of my work without being obtrusive. His respect and support have filled me with admiration.

This research would have been impossible without the constructive support received all along from Dr. F. Franco from the department of Economics, St. Xavier's College, Ahmedabad. My special thanks.

My profound thanks to Dr. Sarvar Sherry Chand from the English Literature Department, St. Xavier's College, Ahmedabad, whose observations, appreciative reading and reconstructions caught my intent.

Thanks are also due to Dr. Suguna Ramanathan from the English Literature Department, St. Xavier's College, Ahmedabad, and Fr. Robert Arockiasamy from Economics Department, St. Xavier's College, Ahmedabad, for their encouragement and practical support.

I am particularly indebted to Prof. Kantibhai Patel from the Economics Department, St. Xavier's College, Ahmedabad, for facilitating the completion of this research without which this adventure would probably never have been completed.

Roopali Burke and Anita Dixit translated and transcribed interviews from Gujarati to English; their help has been invaluable.

Bina Christian patiently edited my work and helped me enormously to struggle with one of my worst stakeholders: the computer.
I wish to thank my sister M. Eugenia Hormaeche who has unfailingly provided any assistance that was needed.

But all this would have been for naught without the sustaining trust with which the Behavioural Science Centre, Ahmedabad, supported my work and for leading me to understand India's everyday life.

Where quotations appear in Spanish sources appear in the text in English, the translations are my own.
