ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The fighting spirit of the peasantry of Kerala, which included agricultural labourers and the small peasants, has been a fundamental force of transformation of Kerala. The long drawn fight fought by the peasantry against feudalism was a brilliant episode in the Kerala history wrote in sweat, tears and blood. That struggle is yet to finish. The plight of the Indian peasantry which hardly get addressed in the public discourse and media, is what inspired this study. The close contact with the lived experience of the peasantry helps one to debunk the notion that their predicament is a thing of the past. It also generated an interest to see how the media and discourse had reacted to the now often romanticised struggles of the peasantry when they were actually fought. The thesis is the result of that inquiry.

I am greatly obliged to my supervising teacher Dr. V.V. Kunhikrishnan, the former Deputy Director of Collegiate Education, without whose patient and persistent guidance this work would not have been completed. His expertise in agrarian question in Kerala helped the development of the thesis. He was a constant source of inspiration throughout the period of my research. I express my heartfelt gratitude towards him.
