Compilation of information and collection and analysis of data are complex tasks. The type of research that I conducted was a multifaceted process during which a number of people, involved in the merger and acquisition processes of the companies, were contacted and consulted. I would like to sincerely thank all the people who directly or indirectly helped me to collect and compile the valuable information required for this thesis.

I would like to thank my research guide Dr. Hina Sidhu for her patience in guiding me through the Ph.D process. Seldom does one encounter an intellectual and simplicity in the same academic person. She was always available to devote time for academic discussions and offered her valuable comments and suggestions for the improvement of documentation. She has been encouraging me to seek more and more information for the understanding of the intricacies of mergers and acquisitions of the companies. She has taken pains to read the drafts of the chapters and provided guidance about the improvement in data analysis and writing skills. I thank her for everything she has contributed in the completion of this thesis.

My father-in-law Advocate Mahesh Trivedi encouraged me to register for Ph.D. degree in order to achieve success in my academic carrier. He always believed in working hard and adopting positive approach to accomplish tasks. He was always my great source of inspiration and motivation. Since he has left for heavenly abode, his blessings have constantly helped me to complete my thesis smoothly.

I am grateful to the management of GLS college for permitting me to register for my Ph.D. degree and allow me to take leave as and when I required to visit various offices for collection of data. I am indebted to Mr. Sudhir Nanavati, the Executive Vice President of Gujarat Law Society for his support throughout the tenure of my research.
I must acknowledge the contribution of my parents in my achievements. My father Prof. Upendrabhai Pandya has inculcated the academic feelings in me right from my young age. He always guided me to pursue academic studies and take up the profession of teaching which he feels is the best way to serve the society. My mother was also a source of inspiration in doing work sincerely. My wife Seema has been constantly encouraging me to devote sufficient time to complete my thesis at the earliest. Besides attending to her teaching activities, she has taken pains to manage the household chores and look after our son Nishiv. Nishiv must have felt my absence quite often as I could not devote adequate time to play with him and entertain him due to my busy schedule of teaching and research activities. I must dedicate this thesis to my family for their moral support and encouragement for the completion of the thesis.

The facilities as well as friendly attitudes of the staff members at the School of Social Sciences, Gujarat University and the staff of PG department at the Gujarat University are also worthy of acknowledgement.
