ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Behind every achievement lie the efforts and wishes of many a people. To thank them all is a Herculean task, nevertheless it gives me great pleasure to do so.

At the outset I wish to thank Dr. S.R. Dave, Head, Department of Microbiology, School of Sciences, Gujarat University, Ahmedabad, under whose guidance my research work found a direction to follow and a goal to achieve. A teacher par excellence, it is he, who inculcated in me a scientific temper to think independently, ask questions, work methodically, analyze objectively and above all to put to use knowledge for the greater service of society. His immense patience, constructive criticism and constant encouragement have helped me greatly in my research work.

I also wish to extend my heart-felt thanks towards his family, especially, his wife, Mrs. Smita Dave whose genuine concern, support and encouragement throughout the research period has helped me in ways more than words could say.

I sincerely thank Dr. N.K. Yadav, Dr. B.V. Patel and Dr. Minu Saraf for being a source of constant encouragement and help during my course of work in the department.

My heartfelt thanks to Shri S.B. Vora, General Manager, R&D, Gujarat Mineral Development Corporation, for his active interest in my research work and kind cooperation whenever I needed. I am thankful to GMDC for the project grant and fellowship and also to Late Shri Ghoribhai and other staff members of GMDC for their cooperation.

I am sincerely thankful to Prof. Dr. Inmaculada Palencia, Department of Chemical Engineering, Facultad de Quimica, Universidad de Sevilla, Spain, for the microscopic analysis of polymetallic concentrate and her valuable suggestions. I feel honoured to have been associated with her and thank her for all her help.

I thank Prof. Dr. Y.K. Agrawal, Head, Dept. of Chemistry, Gujarat University and Dr. Ashish Chenani, Scientist, Institute of Plasma Research, India for helping me with the X-ray diffraction study of polymetallic concentrate.

My sincere thanks to CSIR, New Delhi for the full travel grant to attend the IBS'99 Conference held at Spain.
I am grateful to the non-teaching staff of my department comprising of Diptiben, Parikhbhai, Khandubhai, Dharamsihbhai and Kanjibhai for their cooperation. I am also thankful to Ketanbhai, Prashantbhai and staff members of the workshop, Gujarat University.

Special thanks to my M.Phil. colleagues and juniors in the department for their support. It has always been a pleasure working in the department with colleagues like Nasreen, Harsha and Maitry. They not only created a friendly working environment but have gone, time and again, out of their way to help me with my work.

One can never really thank one’s friends enough for their incessant encouragement, motivation, sincere opinions and ever-willing assistance. It is for these attributes that I extend my gratitude to my friends, Namrata, Trupti, Shobha, Anupama, Noopur, Sonia, Deepa, Usha, Lata, Jayesh, Snehal, Preeti, Gopa, Naresh and Niraj.

A special word of thanks to Nasreen, Ph.D. student and a friend who did the tedious job of typing and without her help it was impossible to prepare the manuscript in time. Her family deserves a special note of thanks on my behalf for a great deal of support while this thesis was being prepared at her residence.

I also thank Smitha for helping me at the final stage of the thesis preparation.

It is a pleasure to show my gratitude to Prasad, Sachin and Narendra for their help in binding and printing of the manuscript.

It is with the blessings of my grandmother, uncles and aunts that I have been able to complete my thesis. My brother Yogendra and sister Tarika deserve a special vote of thanks for their help and support. I also thank Nikita, Kshitija, Chinmay and Siddharth for their encouragement and concern.

No words can express my heartfelt gratitude towards my parents who have not only been a great source of inspiration and support but also an epitome of patience which has helped me reach my goal without any hinderance.

Last but not the least, I wish to thank all my well-wishers and friends who have helped me directly or indirectly during my research tenure.
