Acknowledgments: Data and Software support

Several datasets, data visualization tools were used exhaustively in this thesis work.

- The Weather Research and Forecast (WRF) model was acquired from NCAR/UCAR through http://www.mmm.ucar.edu/

- NCEP analysis was obtained from www.nomad3.ncep.noaa.gov.

- The tropical cyclone operational best track analysis by JTWC was obtained from their official server http://www.npmoc.navy.mil/jtwc.html.

- Meteosat AMV’s data was obtained from http://www.eumetsat.int

- TMI, SSM/I and QuikSCAT data were obtained courtesy Frank Wentz, from Remote Sensing Systems, Santa Rosa, CA, U.S.A. through ftp://ftp.ssmi.com/.

- The Radiosonde observations were obtained from Wyoming University through their site http://www.weather.uwyo.edu/upperair/sounding.html

- Data visualization software GrADS-Grided Analysis and Display System, developed at Center for Ocean-Land-Atmosphere Studies, Calverton, MD, U.S.A were used for generating the figures.

- Thanks to Google search engine, for freely providing such an efficient and valuable tool.
