ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to thank Dr. Shirish T. Kapadia, Director, University School of Psychology, Education and Philosophy, Gujarat University, for his invaluable guidance and great personal kindness. I am also grateful to Prof. P. N. Khandwa, Director, Indian Institute of Management, Ahmedabad, for facilitating the undertaking of this study; to Prof. A. H. Kalro, Chairperson, Ravi J. Matthai Centre for Educational Innovation, Indian Institute of Management, Ahmedabad, for his personal and institutional support; and to Prof. Anil K. Gupta for his continuous guidance and for first suggesting the topic of this study. I also wish to thank Fr. J. M. Heredero s.j. for provoking my interest in rural and nonformal education.

Shri Kumudbhai Thakar and Shri Mansukhla Salla of Lok Bharati, Sanosara, Shri Chelbhai Shukla of J. C. Kumarappa Gram Vidyapith, and Shri Motibhai Chaudhry of Gram Bharati, Amrapur, were instrumental in facilitating the initiation of this study. Shri Manubhai Pancholi provided essential insights into the spirit of the Gram Vidyapith movement. Teachers who have assisted at various stages of the study include Sarvashri Govindbhai Raval, Nattubhai Parmar, Devjibhai Patel, Mohanbhai Patel, Manubhai Patel, Babubhai C. Lodha and Yogesh Trivedi. To all of them and to all the participants in this study -- teachers, students and alumni -- my grateful thanks.
I wish to acknowledge Shailesh R. Shukla’s assistance in conducting interviews, in undertaking the statistical analysis and various other administrative matters. Others who helped in interviewing and administering questionnaires were Prakash K. Thakar, Jagdish D. Patel, Ramesh D. Patel and Mansukh Rojara. R. Baskaran, R. Balaganapathy, M. Jayakumar and Jeeva Kotiya provided administrative support. Prof. Ranjit Gupta offered valuable advice on an early draft of this study.

Finally, I would like to thank my wife Sarvar, who has been a constant source of encouragement and support, and assisted in reviewing sociological theory and editing the various drafts.
