I wish to express my deep sense of gratitude to my guide Dr. P.K. Shrivastava, who not only originated the topic of this thesis and inspired me to take up the work, but also throughout this work was a constant source of academic advice and many kinds of help. The time spent in discussions with him gave me much insight and knowledge.

I wish to express my thanks to the Director of ATIRA, Dr. T. Radhakrishnan, who permitted me to conduct this work and considered it as an ATIRA Project.

I am thankful to Dr. B.N. Mukherjee, the Chairman of Panel of Experts in Human Resources Division, ATIRA, who offered valuable suggestions during the presentation of this work in panel meeting.

I am indebted to Mr. M.D. Patel and Mr. H.D. Bhatt of ATIRA for their help in imparting technical training and making on-the-job observations of work practices of subjects.

I wish to record my gratitude to managements of mills who permitted to conduct this work in their mills. I am also indebted to all my respondents for their co-operation.

My gratitudes are to my parents who did not know about this work hence did not interfere.
I am grateful to all those who directly or indirectly wished well for my work.

It will not be out of place to express my profound gratitudes to the many social scientists who contributed to the development of the theory of attribution, without whom this work would never have been emerged, to name a few, F. Heider, E. Jones and K. Davis, H. Kelley, B. Weiner, W. Elig and M. Zuckerman.

Finally, I express my thanks to Mr. R.C. Vora for going through the drafts and Mr. Y.R. Vora for his able and timely typing.
