Hypothesis

- There is a positive correlationship between caste status and occupational status
- Women belonging to lower caste and with relatively low education are more interested in the police
- Policewomen have low esteem in the society
- Acculturation of workplace has a direct relation in moulding the behaviour pattern of individual
- Education of an individual plays a positive role in minimizing the size of the family, enjoying better status and decision making in the family
- When both husband and wife are in the same profession, more would be the cooperation and sharing of household work by the husband
- Higher the level of education, higher would be the respect policewomen command from their relatives and from their male counterparts