ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

First and foremost, I must express my thanks and deepest gratitude to my guide, Dr. Sarvar V. Sherry Chand for being an incredible teacher, an amazingly insightful critic and a truly wonderful human being. I am infinitely indebted to her for honing my skills over the years, responding to my incessant queries with great patience and steering me in the right direction with her sharp and accurate comments. As a teacher and a guide, she will always serve as an inspiration to me and all the students who have had the good fortune of being under her tutelage.

Secondly, I am grateful to my wife, Sunita Nair, for being so discerning as to suggest that I select Nonsense as my object of study since Nonsense Literature has always been close to my heart since childhood and because it continues to offer an inexhaustible range of meanings. The extent of her contribution, sacrifice and support cannot be put into words. I would also like to express my thankfulness to my daughter, Devika, for being so understanding and for adjusting to my frequent periods of preoccupation during the course of my research.

I cannot thank enough, my parents: my father, Sudhir Mukerjee, for his genuine faith in me and his constant encouragement, and my mother, Bandana Mukerjee for her consistent and loving support and innumerable sacrifices without which this dissertation would not have been possible.

Finally, I am thankful to the principal and staff of S.L.U. College, where I teach, for genuinely supporting my research endeavour and giving me the time and freedom to complete this dissertation.
