The field of Developmental Psychology has been a relatively neglected area from the point of research. The neglect is not reflected in the number of researches which may be widely attributed to this area as much as in a lack of focus and perspective. The present study focuses on Developmental Patterns of Psychosocial Maturity and Motivational Profiles of students. Changes in these patterns are likely to provide insights for designing appropriate learning experiences in educational institutions.

I am deeply grateful to my guide, Dr. T. V. Rao, Professor, Indian Institute of Management, Ahmedabad, for his guidance, encouragement, constant support, and for helping me to gain insights into the area of psychosocial maturity used in this study, without whose help this study would not have been completed. I also feel indebted very much to Dr. Udaip Pareek, Larsen & Toubro Professor of Organizational Behaviour, Indian Institute of Management, Ahmedabad, for his constant support and inspiration in completing this study.

I am also grateful to Professor David C. McClelland and Professor Abigail J. Stewart, for allowing me to base this research on their work, for using their instruments, and for the financial support provided by Professor David C. McClelland through a grant from Harvard University. My thanks are also due to the Principals of Mount Carmel High School, St. Xavier's High School, Law Society School, and St. Xavier's College, for allowing me to conduct the study amongst their students. I would also like to thank Dr. Mallika V. Sarabhai for providing me the details of a similar study completed by her, which enabled me to conduct this longitudinal study. Mrs. Vijayashree Rajendra Prasad helped me in establishing the inter-scorer reliability and in scoring some of the data after establishing reliabilities on Stewart's measure. My thanks are also due to Professors G. M. Mehta and J. G. Massey, of the University of Udaipur, Udaipur, and Messrs. Dalpat Sarupria and Narendra Dixit who helped me constantly in various ways.

I am also thankful to Mr. Ajai Chauhan, Mrs. Radha Chauhan, Mr. Ajai Rai, Mrs. Pram Sarupria and many other friends for their help at various stages of my work.

My thanks to Mr. M. S. Ramagopal for typing the first draft. Mr. P.S.R.V. Prasad did the final typing of the thesis with speed and efficiency. His help is greatly acknowledged.

I am deeply thankful to my parents and brothers, who have been constantly by my side in helping, supporting and encouraging me whenever I was faced with frustration which is inevitable in the process of researches of this nature.

Mahendra Kumar Singhvi

August 1980