Acknowledgements

I have had both latent and manifest intention and desire to pursue research work for Ph.D. ever since I completed my post-graduation in 1997 from the University of Pune. This desire of mine was not fulfilled due to my personal preoccupation in search of job and family demand. Added to this is the fact that there is no department of sociology in Manipur University in spite of the known fact that the importance of sociology is increasing day by day in the ever-changing society. This is indeed very unfortunate for the student community in particular and for those who are interested in higher study in the field of sociology. Here, I am very much grateful to the authorities of Nagaland University, particularly the Department of Sociology for providing me the opportunity to pursue this research work under the supervision of Dr. Kshetri Rajendra Singh, Associate Professor.

I acknowledge my sincere gratitude with deep sense of respect to my supervisor, Dr. Kshetri Rajendra Singh, Associate Professor, Department of Sociology, Nagaland University under whose affectionate and illuminating guidance, this work has been completed. Without his persistent effort, constructive criticism, constant encouragement and careful evaluation and correction during the course of the present work, it would have not come in its final form.

I would like to thank Prof. A. Lanu Ao, Head, Department of Sociology and Dean, School of Social Sciences, Nagaland University for his constant encouragement and interest in the present work.

My special word of thanks should go to all the respondents who provided me specific information by sparing their valuable time. It is because of their understanding and cooperation that I could get relevant primary data pertaining to the present work. Their experiences, thoughts, perception and perspective with regard to various issues of the state that they shared with me during personal interview gave life to the present work. I owe a debt of gratitude for their cooperation and hospitality during my field work period.

I also acknowledge my gratitude to Dr. Meinam Binota Devi, Associate Professor, Department of Economics, Imphal College, Government of Manipur for her intellectual support and suggestion during this work. Her encouragement and suggestion count a lot in determining the direction of the study.

In studying the political elites in Manipur, I have been provided many helps and suggestions, both academic and non academic from many quarters. Though it is not possible to acknowledge them individually; I would like to express my gratitude to-Mrs.
and Dr. N. Giridhari Singh, retired senior Librarian, RIMS, Imphal and thanks to my colleagues in the Department of Sociology, D.M. College of Arts, Government of Manipur, Imphal, Helen W., Head and Associate Professor, K. Suresh, Associate Professor, R.K.
Tombisana Devi, Associate Professor, S. Ramakanta Singh, Associate Professor, Dr. S.
Sakhitombi Devi, Assistant Professor, A. Sanatomba Singh, Assistant Professor for their suggestion and encouragement to complete the work.

I must place here my personal gratitude and indebtedness to my sisters O. Ibemhal Devi, O. Ibeynamo and O. Tharakleima Devi and brother in laws M. Ibohal Singh, Head, Department of Economic, D.M. College of Arts, Government of Manipur, Imphal, L.
Ibochou and (L) Th. Manoranjan Singh for their encouragement, suggestion and support during my doctoral period.

I am also very thankful to Dr. S. Brajamani Singh for his constant encouragement and help during the field trips undertaken for the study. I also must thank my father, O.
Gopal Singh, mother, (L) O. Sanahal Devi and sister in law, O. Lalita Devi, for their support and encouragement to complete the work.

My special words of thanks should go to my wife, Dr. N. Vidyavati Devi, Librarian, NIT, Imphal, for her understanding and support without which the thesis would not be possible to complete in time. I must also thank my daughter, Thistle Oinam, for being a nice girl by giving me time when I needed it most.

Last but not the least, I, alone, am responsible for the errors or omissions and shortcomings that might crop up in the following pages of this dissertation.
