Chapter-VII

Bibliography

volume: 30.

from sugar and starch feedstocks”. Biotechnology Advances, 26: 89-105.

Cristina A. Viegas, Regina C. Nabais, Isabel Sa-Correia, and Julio M. Novais., (1988),

Ebru Toksoy Oner, Stephen G. O, and Betul Kirdar., (2005), “Production of Ethanol from Starch by Respiration-Deficient Recombinant Saccharomyces cerevisiae”, *Applied and bioethanol from next generation feed-stock alga Spirogyra species”, *International

“Influence of nitrogen salts on alcohol production”. *Revista ICIDCA Sobre Los Gaber Z. Breisha, (2010), “Production of 16% ethanol from 35% sucrose”, Biomass and Bioenergy, 34: 1243-1249.

(2010), “Effects of using mixed wine yeast cultures in the production of Chardonnay on bakers’ yeast growing in gelatin”, Applied and Environmental Microbiology, Volume-43, No. 4, p. 757-763.

Gervasio P. Da Silva, Elza F. de Araujo, Daison O. Silva, and Walter V. Guimaraes., (2005) “Ethanolic fermentation of sucrose, sugarcane juice and molasses by Escherichia coli strain KO11 and Klebsiella Oxytoca strain P2, Brazilian Journal of Microbiology, 36:395-404.

cheese whey fermentation in a batch-Airlift bioreactor”, *Journal Bioengineering & Biomedical Science, 2:2.

Hennell, H. (1828). "On the mutual action of sulfuric acid and alcohol and on the nature of the process by which ether is formed". Philosophical Transactions, 118: 365.

temperature for efficient for efficient very high gravity-fermentation”, Applied and Environmental Microbiology, Volume-60, No: 3, P: 1048-1051.

Bioethanol production-2014

fermentations of grape juice with Saccharomyces cerevisiae, Journal of Applied Microbiology, 91:541-547.

antibacterial compounds by phylloplane-inhabiting yeasts and yeast like fungi”, Pratyoosh Shukla, Thulasizwe T. N, Nishana Baboolal, Kugen Permaul and Suren Singh.,

Seyyed Hadi Razavi, Sara Sahrabvandi, Seyyed Mohammad Mousavi, Amir Mohammad, and Mortazavian., (2010), “Characteristics of different brewer’s yeast strains used for non-alcoholic beverage fermentation in media containing different fermentable sugars”,

Bioethanol production-2014  Page 234

Silvia Sillerova, Blazena Lavova, Dana Urminska, Anezka Polakova, Alena Vollmannova, and Lubos Harangozo., (2012) “Copper enriched yeast Saccharomyces cerevisiae as a potential supplementation in nutrition”, Journal of Microbiology, Biotechnology and Walter Borzani., (2006), “Batch ethanol fermentation: the correlation between the fermentation efficiency and the biomass initial concentration depends on what is considered as produced ethanol”, Brazilian Journal of Microbiology, 37:87-89.

