ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I acknowledge my sincere gratitude to Dr Jamil A Khan, Dean Faculty of Life Sciences, for his encouragement and unstinting support during the course of this study.

I am also deeply grateful to Dr Savitri Ramamurthy, Head of the Community Resource Management and Extension Department, Lady Irwin College, New Delhi, for her inspiring and valuable suggestions in defining the scope of the subject.

Mr Girish, owner of a metal cap industry in Aligarh, deserves special thanks for his sincere help and guidance in gaining an insight into the lives of the working women in Mushtaqnagar and Mahendranagar. I am thankful to Mr Goel of Chandaniya, and Mr Navin Chester for sharing vital information regarding the functioning of these small factories. I am thankful to Mr Varghese for helping me to contact home-based women workers in Jeevangarh.

I am indebted to the concerned authorities of all the libraries I consulted in Aligarh, Lucknow, New Delhi, Calcutta and specially the National Institute of Nutrition, Hyderabad for their willing assistance.

The working mothers and children of the sample studied deserve special thanks for allowing me to study their lives.
This study would not have been possible without the unwavering support of my friends and family throughout the duration of this research.
