

Acknowledgement

As I tend to pen my thoughts, my heart fills with reverence and respect for people who made this thesis happen. First and foremost, I wish to thank and express my sincere acknowledgement for none other than my research guide Dr. Mahesh Kumar Dey. His constant support, motivation and inspiring confidence in me helped to complete this thesis with ease and preciseness. Also I would like to extend my gratitude to the author Chitra Banerjee Divakaruni for sharing her biographical details.

A word of sincere acknowledgement is for Dr. Rakesh N. Desai, Professor and HOD of the English Department, whose presence enlightens and motivates to work hard.

My goodwill gestures are for all my teachers who nurtured my talent and made me what I am today. This thesis is a fitting tribute to the life-long learners who without any expectation turn the blossoming buds into fragrant flowers. My earnest words of thanks for all the faculty members of the Department of English, the library staff and the non-teaching staff in the University.

I remember fondly my late father Mr. Roshanlal Agarwal at this stage of my life. My mother, Mrs. Nirmala Agarwal is the backbone of my life and I dedicate this thesis to her because without her it wouldn't have been possible to fight the odds and come out victorious. The best critic of my life and work has been my dear brother Ravi Agarwal who I wish to appreciate as he has patiently and indirectly helped me fight all my apprehensions and confrontations.

I am highly grateful to my college Principal Dr. K. N. Chavda, for his co-operation, help, and for having provided the best working environment and inspiration to promote research activities. By subscribing to INFLIBNET he opened the doors of research for the faculty. A genuine word of appreciation for all my colleagues, especially the faculty members of the English Department, of J.Z. Shah Arts & H.P. Desai Commerce College, with whom I work and who shared the responsibility and allowed me to focus more on my research. The support of the non-teaching staff of the college too cannot be missed out.

At this point, I wish to thank my students in particular and friends who have always shared my happiness with enthusiasm and delight. With many more dreams in my heart, I express my thanks to one and all who have directly or indirectly been helpful.
