ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

My deepest gratitude is to Prof. Dr. Mitra Mukherjee-Parikh, my research supervisor, who in spite of an extremely hectic schedule, not only went through my work meticulously and provided her scholarly inputs, but also patiently stood by me in difficult circumstances. Her insights and critical suggestions have contributed significantly in shaping this dissertation. Her suggestions regarding modernism and modernity in India, especially, have played a vital role in structuring my thesis. It has been a great learning experience to work with her. Besides, I am also inspired by her down-to-earth qualities and humane nature.

Though I could meet late Dilip Chitre only once, he has been a source of inspiration for me. He was generous enough to accept one of my articles on Arun Kolatkar for New Quest. I want to acknowledge him for it.

I was also fortunate to interact frequently with scholars and former teachers like Prof. EV Ramakrishnan, Dean, School of Humanities and Social Sciences, Central University of Gujarat, Gandhinagar, Prof. Rakesh Desai, Head, Department of English, VN SG University, Surat, and Prof. Sachin Ketkar, Department of English, The MS University of Baroda. This regular interface opened up a wealth of insights which has been invaluable for me. I am grateful for their erudite inputs and support.

I want to acknowledge my parents, especially my mother, who I lost during the course of the work, and is still a source of inspiration and empowerment. I want to thank my husband Vispi Kasad for his patience, understanding and unconditional support he has given during the work, especially looking after Ishana when I had to be out of town for library work very often.

I want to acknowledge librarians of VNSG University Library, Surat, Smt. Hansa Mehta Library, Baroda, and Library of Forum for Contemporary Thought, Baroda for their help.
