ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Dr. B. Koteswara Rao, Dean, Professor and Head of the Post graduate department of Law of Sri Venkateswara University, Tirupati (A.P) who is one among few self-luminous personalities in the field of law in India, has been my research supervisor; it has been my great and rare privilege to have such a colossus in law as my guide; he always had for me a kind heart, but with no tendency to compromise, in the quality of the work to be produced. He himself spent long hours in guiding me and make me burn, the midnight oil. This work of mine, truly reflects his sagacious dexterity and assiduous nature in guiding me althroughout. He whipped me to be a running horse to complete this work with great care, by studing long and odd hours. In deed, it is very difficult to ac-knowledge in fitting terms, the assistance I received from my guide, yet appearing to be free from flattery.
Dr. K. Venkata Reddy, Vice-Chancellor of Sri Krishnadevaraya University and Prof. S. I. Ramavatharam, Head and Dean, Department of Law, S.K. University have been a great source of encouragement, inspiration, and hope in completion of this work. I am so deeply indebted to the above two personalities, that I cannot amply repay the debt of gratitude for them in words.

I received great enlightenment from out of the discussions I had with Prof. Upendra Baxi, Vice-Chancellor of Delhi University, and Prof. D. Sivaramayya, Department of Law of Delhi University. The time I spent with them have been rarest movements of intensive legal enlightenment which has greatly helped me in my work. I have been immensely benefitted by their multi-dimensional discussion on various aspects in a very thought provoking manner. I record my sincerest gratitude for them.

cell, Hyderabad for their timely supply of necessary authentic information required to complete this work.

Dr. A. Ramakrishna Rao, Professor of English, S.K. University, Anantapur read my manuscript and made useful suggestions enhancing the value of my work. I very much thank him for the same.

The Librarians of Indian Law Institute, Delhi, U.S.I.S., British Council, Madras, Institute of Economic and Social Change, Bangalore, S.V. University, Tirupati, S.K. University, Anantapur, ungrudgingly placed before me all the materials in their power in a highly co-operative spirit and helped me in completion of this thesis. The personnel in the other departments also contributed their best, in various manners in this regard. I sincerely thank them for it.

Truely I am grateful to the respondents for sparing their valuable time and for cooperating in obtaining the information for the questionnaires structured for the purposes of this research work.

For fear that the acknowledgements would become too long, I close it, with sincere thanks to all those noble souls who by their erudition, kindness, encouragement and timely suggestions, have contributed for the completion of this thesis.
