ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I express my sincerest gratitude to my esteemed teacher and supervisor Prof. (Mrs) Hamida Ahmad, Department of Psychology, A M U, Aligarh for the inspiration and invaluable guidance for my research work. She readily spared her valuable time in spite of her heavy academic and administrative responsibilities and health problems to guide the present investigation. In fact, I find myself short of words to express my feelings.

I am grateful to Prof. Qamar Hasan, Chairman, Department of Psychology, A M U, Aligarh for his encouragement and moral support during this study.

I also owe thanks to Dr. Saeduzaffar, Reader, Department of Psychology, A M U, Aligarh for his cooperation and suggestions.

My senior colleague Dr. N. Hasnain, Head, Department of Psychology, Jamia Millia Islamia, New Delhi also gave constructive suggestions. My thanks are also due to him.

Dr. M. Shafiq, Reader, Department of Psychology, Jamia Millia Islamia, New Delhi also deserves thanks for the moral support in the completion of present endeavour.

My thanks also go for my friends Dr. Ghazi Shahnawaz and Mr. Arvind Kumar Misra, Lecturers, Department of Psychology, Jamia Millia Islamia, New Delhi for their help which they rendered during the present investigation.

I will also remember Ms. Rehana Ahmad, Mr. Zaki Akhter, Mr. Nasir, Ms. Heena, Ms. Faiha and Ms. Rizwana, research scholars, Department of Psychology, A M U, Aligarh for their help.
And above all how can I forget to remember my wife, Tanveer, and sweet young son Zakkhar, who never complained against the encroachment my research work made on the time that was meant for some special purposes. The usual tiredness and monotony that occasionally tends to interrupt the flow of the thesis writing was very effectively overcome by their unique gestures.
