Acknowledgements

First of all, I pray and thank to God who endow me with good thoughts and gave me ability to carry out my research work devotionally and to work with great enthusiasm. He guided me what is good for me. I bow to thee.

I do not find appropriate words to express my deep sense of gratitude to my respected teacher and supervisor Dr. Saeeduzzafar Reader, Department of Psychology, Aligarh Muslim University, Aligarh, for his invaluable guidance, expert suggestions, sympathetic and inspiring attitude, timely assistance, affectionate encouragement and advice in structuring this thesis and for his characteristic willingness to give so freely of his time. His cooperation, guidance, and his many editorial efforts during the course of the investigation, which I shall forever cherish, enabled me to accomplish this work. I can only say that my heart overflows with deep gratitudes for him.

I also express my profound gratitude to Prof. Afzal Kureshi, Chairman, Department of Psychology, for his general advice, inspiration, constant encouragement, favourable attitude, and for providing necessary research facilities to complete this work.

I am indebted to Prof. S. Sultan Akhtar, Ex-Chairman, Department of Psychology, who took keen interest in my research work and helped me a lot to conduct this study through his erudition, and eminent guidance whenever it was needed.

I owe a special debt to Dr. Qamar Hasan, Reader, Department of Psychology, A.M.U. Aligarh for his wise counselling and valuable help he so willingly extended to me particularly relating to the statistical analysis.

I also express my sincere thanks to all teachers and all colleagues of the department for their affection, encouragement, cooperation and guidance.

Special mention must be made to my heartfelt gratitudes to my respected parents, sisters and brothers, who I believe, will be the happiest souls on the earth to see this work completed. I know their financial assistance, love, affections, guidance and patience can never be paid back by my mere thanks.

I am also grateful to my friends Harsh Taluja and Priti Vadra for their assistance and encouragement.

I shall be failing in my duty if I do not thank to Mr. Suhail Ahmad (M/s Micro Services Centre) for wordprocessing the manuscript with great skill and patience.

RAMA SHARMA