Acknowledgments

This thesis could not have been completed without the support, encouragement and help of many individuals. I would like to take this opportunity to express my deepest thanks and grateful appreciation to everyone who assisted in completing this work.

First, my foremost thanks to my thesis supervisor Professor S. Imtiaz Hasnain for his invaluable help and guidance. Professor Hasnain is distinguished by his vast knowledge and academically recognized reputation. I will always remember Professor Hasnain for his wisdom, patience, encouragement, guidance and generous help that carried me through difficult times. He was most understanding and supportive throughout the long process of completing this thesis. I am also indebted to him for spending his precious time reading the thesis draft and offering suggestions and advice for improvement. He provided constructive and critical comments, through which he shared his wide range of knowledge and profound insights. Therefore, I would like to forward my profound thanks to Professor Hasnain for having the time to supervise my thesis.

I am also very thankful to my co-supervisor Professor S. Kafeel Ahmed Qasimi, the ex-chairman of Arabic Department AMU.
for his cooperation and valuable assistance he had rendered me during my effort in conducting this study in the department. I am also gratitude to Professor Kafeel for providing me useful materials about the Arabic language in India. Without his help and devotion, it would have been impossible to distribute my questionnaires. I thank him for his patience ad support that helped to collect the data.

This appreciation also goes to the other doctors in the Arabic Department for their cooperation in helping me to collect my data and for their discussion and comment and assistance in adaptation the questionnaire. Among them are Prof. M.S. Umari, Dr. Faizan Ahmad, Dr. Sanaullah, and Dr. Faizan Beg.

I would also like to thank Professor Emeritus Robert C. Gardner of the University of Western Ontario, Canada, and Dr. Anne-Marie Masgoret of the University of Victoria of Wellington, New Zealand, for sending me some of related reading materials cited in the text.

Also, acknowledgement should be give to all the students who participated in my study. Without them, this study would not be possible. I highly appreciated their help. I specially would like to thank Mrs. Shafqut Sadruddin for her help in many ways.
I also would like to express my sincere thanks and grateful to Dr. Nasir Ali, department of Psychology AMU, for his assistance with statistical analysis.

I express my deep gratitude to Yemeni National Commission for UNESCO for their help and moral support.

I also express my deep gratitude to the Ministry of Higher Education and Research in Yemen for their financial support.

My thanks go to my friends Dr. Mohammed Abdo Al-Mehlafi, Dr. Ahmaed Al-Quyadhi, Dr. Hassan Saleh, Dr. Muhammad Aldoais, Dr. Ibrahim Haydrah, Hashim Al-Mikhlafi, Abdul-Aziz Ahmed Al-Mikhlafi, Abdul-Aziz Annuno, Abdul-Salam Al-Hubayshy and Qumroz khan for their help and encouragement. Also my thanks go to my colleagues, Abdullah Shaghi, Jamal Al-Homadi, Abdullah Talhah, Niyazi Al-Areqi and Jamal Alawi, abdurahman Asfyani, Arif Al-Ahdal and Ahmed Al-Mehraby for the help and encouragement they provided me. Special thanks goes to my brother in law, Moad Dabuwan AL-Mekhlafi. Also thanks goes to Mr. Adnan Hamid Saleemi for typing my thesis.

Above all, my family deserves the biggest debt of appreciation and far more gratitude than I can express. I acknowledge the encourage role of their faith, patience, sacrifice, love, pride and support without which this would not have possible to achieve a long-held dream. I thank you for the times you accepted my having to ignore you. My mother, Zabnah, always prays for my health and academic success from home every morning and night. I owe a debt of gratitude to her for the encouragement and love of education she sparkled early in my life. My wife, Hayat, supported me and stands by me all these years. My elder brothers, Abdullah and Mohammed, encouraged me and supported me financially when I was in need. I also thank my four children, Haitham, Hadeel, Reema and Mohammed for their endurance and faith in me. They always held out a positive view of me and I am glad that I have lived up to their expectations. I thank them and Hayat for patiently waiting on the benefits of life after the doctorate degree. I also extended my thanks to my brothers and sisters.

Again, to all with the utmost gratitude, love and appreciation, “Thank you from the bottom of my heart.”
