Acknowledgments

All praise and thanks is due to Almighty Allah for the completion of this dissertation and for His all guidance, kindness and blessings.

This dissertation would not have been possible without the tremendous help, support and sacrifice of many people who have contributed significantly to my formation and to the development of the ideas expressed in the dissertation. But, in fact, it is not an easy task to mention all the names of these many people whose help and encouragement and the effort they contribute on the creation of this dissertation in an acknowledgement with one or two pages. It is therefore my pleasure to be able to express my profound gratitude, thanks and appreciation to all of them.

First, I am deeply indebted to my supervisor, Prof. S. Imtiaz Hasnain, who is also recently the chairman of the department of linguistics, faculty of Arts, AMU, for his excellent supervision and encouragement, not to mention, his tireless efforts and invariable suggestions and comments. He always had insightful comments, he was always able to detect the weak points of my argumentation, and he was always quite wholehearted about what I was doing. I am not sure what would have become of the endeavor without his supervision, guidance and support.

Thanks for my supervisor for seeing through my drafts. Without the invaluable assistance of you, this thesis would not have seen the light of day. Prof S. Imtiaz, I really apologize if I made you any inconvenience by what I provided you or what I emailed you. Any gaps, omissions, errors, or other infelicities in this dissertation are my responsibility alone.

I would like also to extend my thanks to Prof. A. R. Fatihi, the former chairman of the department of linguistics, faculty of Arts, AMU for his cooperation and valuable comments and feedback. Special thanks are necessary for all the staffs in the department of linguistics, whose high performance has given name and fame to the department in and out of India, for their cooperation.

I am grateful to the dean of the Faculty of Arts for his/her cooperation and kind treatment. I also extend my thanks to the Vice-Chancellor, the controller, the Provost, the Proctor, and every one in the A.M.U of Aligarh. Also my thanks go to Mawlana Azaad Library of the Aligarh Muslim University which has, as always, been efficient in supplying research material.

Also, I would like to acknowledge my debt to (http://www.gigapedia.org), (http://www.jstor.com/), and (http://proquest.umi.com/pqdweb) from which I have downloaded many e-books, many papers, and many theses and papers in linguistics, respectively that help me in the theoretical foundations for my data analysis.

I would like to extend my thanks to the advisor, Prof. Anjani K. Sinha, a retired professor in Delhi University, department of linguistics who spent uncountable hours reading chapterization and some drafts of this dissertation and providing me with invaluable suggestions and excellent feedback.

I would also like to extend my thanks to Prof. Janet C. E. Watson for her valuable suggestions and insightful comments through e-mail communications (J.C.E.watson@salford.ac.uk), and for benevolently sending me through mails some of her own papers and a copy of the paper of Prochazka, Theodore, Jr. (1987), mentioned in the bibliography of this thesis.

I would also like to extend my thanks to Dr. Sama NAIM, for her valuable suggestions through e-mail communications and for kindly sending me through mails some of her own paper NAIM. Samia. (2006) and a copy of the paper of Prochazka, Theodore, Jr. (1987), mentioned in the bibliography of this thesis.

I would also like to extend my thanks to Jonas Buchholz, the web master of the German web for Semitic Studies at Heidelberg University (Semitic Studies at Heidelberg University), for kindheartedly sending me a copy of the paper of Greenman, J. (1979), mentioned in the bibliography of this thesis and another copy of a paper unrelated, through e-mail communications ("Jonas Buchholz" <J.Buchholz@stud.uni-heidelberg.de>).

Much of the TYA data in this dissertation has been collected from fieldwork with native speakers of this dialect spoken in Zabid city of the Yemeni Tihamah region. They have my endless gratitude for their tireless patience and insight. They represent the following people of Zabid city who have been extremely helpful as native speakers, and I thank them for their enthusiastic participation as informants, for their time and patience in providing judgments on much of the TYA data presented in

In my trip for the field work to Yemen in Tihamah region and in Zabid city in 2006-2007, I was aided immensely by a great number of institutions and people. I was supported by pre-dissertation grants or scholarship from Hodaidah University. I would like to thank its rector Prof. Qasim Burayh, Dr. Hamuud Qadhah, dean of Zabid College of education. Dr. Nabil Farae, the head of English department in Zabid college of Education and who is being considered as the internal supervisor for the field work I did in Yemen according to the system and policy of Hodiadah University. I would like also to thank the former head of English department in Zabid college of Education, Dr. Thiaga Rajan, for his suggestions in the beginning of my research. I would like also to thank Mr. Hisham Abdullah Warru, the manager of Zabid Public Library. I would like also to thank Mr. Mohammed bin Mohammed Mattah, the manager of the Forum of Zabid Culture Office. I would like also to thank Mr. Osamah Abdul-Rahman Al-Hadhrani, the chairman of Al-Husayb Society for Heritage and Folklore Arts in Zabid as well as its secretary general, Mr. Dawud Salim Baazi who is considered to be a distinguished researcher in the Tihami Fokllore Literature. Here also some of the above mentioned names with their own signatures along with certificates from them accompanied with my own English translations are scanned and shown in Appendix 4.

Special thanks go to Dr. Ahmed Ezzi Saghir, the Yemeni assistance professor of Arabic language and literature and the head of Arabic department in Zabid College of Education, who is also a native speaker of the TYA dialect spoken in Zabid city for his valuable suggestions in the beginning of my research.

Also, special thanks go to Dr. Alaa’ al-Ma’aadhidi, the Iraqi assistance professor of Arabic language and literature in Zabid College of Education, for his advice to collect signatures from TYA informants and for his valuable suggestions in the beginning of my research.

Last but not least, I would like to thank all my relatives who are also native speakers of TYA. I would like first to thank my parents, brothers and sisters. I want to say to them thank you for your sacrifices, love, moral and patience, and prayers throughout these years and for putting up with what seemed to be many hours of work which I spent on the data collection, and the checking of the data during the field work. I thank all my uncles and aunts and my four brother-in-laws: Mr. Saket Amoo, Mr. Adel Haziizi, Mr. Abdul-Nuur Al-Qalisi and Mr. Fahd Ramadhan for their love and moral support.

I am also immensely indebted to my wife, Sabah Abdullah Ezzi, and our three kids, for their love and moral support, and for putting up with what seemed to be endless hours of work which I spent on the different stages of the data, the checking and re-checking of the data, and the writing of this thesis. In addition, I greatly benefited from Sabah’s invaluable editing and proofreading remarks. Her expert advice stems from her training in English and linguistics and from having been herself a native speaker of TYA. Your patience while I am away from home or while you were with me when I am engrossed with my work is highly appreciated. Thank you very much my wife Sabah for your sacrifices, love, moral and patience, and prayers, for your comforting words and suggestions and for providing me the Tihami Yemeni Arabic linguistic and sociolinguistic situations with the help of our son and two daughters Baraa and Abraar and Israa. A big hug and great love and thanks go to you, my kids, -that Allah has given me to enliven my journey through this life. I only ask that you not fight about who gets to be the noun and who the adjective. You and your mother were the momentum that kept me alive at times of discomfort and despair.
You have supported me through your sweet and lovely smiles and ongoing love that was much needed and appreciated.

While this dissertation has benefited from the help and support of all those people and others, it goes without saying, however, that I remain solely responsible for any shortcomings or errors herein. In other words, regardless of the contributions of others, I am and no-one else responsible for any errors, whether of fact or interpretation, that may persist in the manuscript.

I must declare that, when I commenced to write what is intended and produced in this dissertation on the description and analysis of TYA dialect, I did not expect to learn anything new myself; but I have really enjoyed discovering and rediscovering both new and old questions that arise from the study of TYA nominal morphology and its interaction with phonology, syntax and the lexicon, even if I cannot claim to have provided any irrefutable new answers.

This has been a wonderful experience.

Abdullah M. M. Shaghi
abdullahshaghi@yahoo.co.uk
abdullah.shaghi@gmail.com
May, 2010
Aligarh Muslim University.
Aligarh.
India