ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In the preparation of the present thesis, I have benefited from the help and guidance of a number of teachers, colleagues and friends. It may not be possible for me to acknowledge individually all of them.

It is my pleasant duty to register my deep sense of gratitude to Professor Irfan Habib, A.M.U., my supervisor, before I became lecturer at the Centre of Advanced Study in History, Aligarh, for his guidance and thorough examination of my work.

I am indebted also to Professor Shireen Moosvi, my teacher and at present Chairman of the Department of History for all kinds of help, advice and reprimand. I am grateful to the Aligarh Historians Society for having my thesis word-processed in its final form.

I will always cherish a grateful and happy memory of the kindness and affection which Professor Frank Perlin, formerly of the Department of History, Erasmus University, Rotterdam, and his wife Mrs Enid Perlin, bestowed upon me during my stay in the Netherlands between 1986 and 1988. Professor Perlin’s support enabled me to utilize Dutch sources by helping me to get the Indo-Dutch Reciprocal Fellowship. Professor D.H.A. Kolff and his wife were also particularly indulgent towards me. Many thanks are due to Ms Agnes Vercammen and others like Dr Nico den Tuinder, Ms Corien Glaudemans, Ms Barthels, and Ms Bhaswati Bhattacharya for their kindness and assistance on several occasions.
Members of the staff of the Algemeen Rijksarchief, The Hague, always extended the utmost courtesy and assistance to me in exploring those wonderful archives.

I wish Professor Ashin Das Gupta had been around to see the completion of my thesis. It was he who first drew my attention to the Dutch material during one of his brief stays at Aligarh in the late 70s.

I am most grateful to Professor S.P. Verma for his many acts of kindness. With his immense knowledge of Mughal paintings, he has helped me in the selection of relevant paintings reproduced in the thesis. He also provided me with photocopies of the illustrations of Miftahu'l Fuzala. I am also beholden to my teacher Professor S.R. Sarma, formerly of the Department of Sanskrit, A.M.U., for his gracious assistance in checking my readings of Sanskrit and Pali texts and allowing me magnanimously to consult books from his personal collection. I have also benefited from my association with Professor S.P. Sharma of the Department of Sanskrit. My friend Professor Imteyaz Hasnain help me in numerous ways. The late Professor M. Athar Ali always encouraged me to finish writing my thesis. I also acknowledge gratefulness towards my senior colleague late Dr I.G. Khan. I wish he could have seen the thesis. I value the encouragement received from Professor Iqtidar Alam Khan and Professor Iqbal Husain of the Department of History.
Among my colleagues I am grateful to Professor Afzal Husain, Professor Pushpa Prasad, Mr S. Nadeem Rezavi, Dr Farhat Hasan, Mr Javed Akhtar, Mrs Ruquia Kazim Husain, Dr Jeya Menon and Dr Nonica Datta who have helped me in all manner of ways.

Besides the staff of the Algemeen Rijksarchief, I am indebted to the authorities and staff of Koninklijk Bibliothek, The Hague; Library of Kern Institute, Leiden University, Leiden; Library of Erasmus University, Rotterdam; National Archives, Delhi; Library of Archaeological Survey of India, New Delhi; National Library, Kolkata; the Seminar Libraries of Department of Sanskrit and Persian, AMU, and above all to the Research Library of the Centre of Advanced Study in History. I should like specially to mention Messrs Aijaz Mohammad Khan, Jalal Abbas Abbasi, Hasan Imam Naqvi, M. Yusuf Siddiqui, Arshad Ali, H.P. Pali, R.R. Atiqui, Bansidhar Sharma, Salman Ahmad, Mazhar Husain, Arshad Ali Khan and Moin, for their help.

I am grateful to Mr Muneeruddin Khan for typing the thesis with some help from Messrs Shujauddin Ahmad, Bahauddin and Danish Alavi.

I am most grateful to my friend Mr Faiz Habib, Cartographic Assistant at the Centre of Advanced Study, who in collaboration with his senior colleague Mr Zahoor Ali Khan, has prepared the maps of this thesis. Mr Ghulam Mujtaba, Senior Photographer, Archaeology Section of the Centre, has prepared the photoplates for illustrations. I am also grateful to Mr Idris Beg and Ms Ashma for all the care they took.

My students Mr Aziz Faisal and Mr Habib Manzar, have helped me in proof reading.

I am grateful to my parents for their indulgence. I should like to close with an expression of the deep gratitude to my wife Rana and children Ms Saman and Imroz, who have borne with my preoccupation with work related to the thesis with remarkable patience and understanding for many years.
