Contents

Chapter 1  Research Design: Statement of the intent and Formulation of the problem 1-13
1.0  Background to the Study
1.1  Rationale for the Study
1.2  The Research Problem
1.3  The Frame of this Study
1.4  The Context for the Study
1.5  The Research Problem
1.6  The Significance of the Study
1.7  Relevance of the Study
1.8  Organization of the Study

Chapter 2  Survey of Audience Awareness Literature 14-53
Part I  Historical and Theoretical Prospective on Audience
2.0  Introduction
2.1  A Brief Historical Survey
2.2  Organization Hypothesis of fictionalizing Audience and other views.
   2.2.1  Applying Organization Fictive Audience in Literary Discourses
   2.2.2  Applying Organization Fictive Audience in Non-Literary Discourses
2.3  Long’s View of Writer-Audience Relationship
   2.3.1  Analytical Approach to Audience Analysis
   2.3.2  Moral Field Approach to Audience Analysis
   2.3.3  The Basic Communication Model
   2.3.4  Writer’s Simultaneous Connections model
2.4  Audience Research: The Social Context of Writing
   2.4.1  Discourse Communities: The Social View of Writing
   2.4.2  Discourse Community, Speech Community and Interpretative Community: Descriptive and Explanatory Adequacies.
      2.4.2.1 Discourse Communities as a function of Genre.
   2.4.3  Pedagogical Implications
2.5  Audience – Authorship Interaction: Reconsideration of the Dialectic view
   2.5.1  The Dialogic Interaction: An Introduction
   2.5.2  Heteroglossia and Intertextuality: A Brief Introduction.
2.5.3 Reviewing the Dialectic View.
   2.5.3.1 Audience as a function of Bakhtin’s ‘Speech Genre’.
   2.5.3.2 The Social Contexts on Writing: Bakhtinian Explorations
2.5.4 Social Dimensions of Writing: Pedagogical Implications

2.6 Audience Research: A Post-Structuralist Reconsideration
   2.6.1 Reviewing the Assumptions of Linear Model of Communication.
   2.6.2 "Otherness" of Writer's Words
   2.6.3 Extending the Authorial Dimension
   2.6.4 The Evolving Audience
   2.6.5 Pre-Mature Closure: Pedagogic Implications

Part II
2.7 Empirical Studies
   2.7.1 Empirical Response to Reader Response Theories: The Scholarly Forum
   2.7.2 Audience Development: Socio-Cognitive Skills
   2.7.3 Review of Comparison Group Experimental Research on Skilled and Unskilled Writer’s Audience Awareness.
       2.7.3.1 Audience Awareness in Case of Experienced Writers
       2.7.3.2 Audience Awareness in Case of inexperienced Writer

Chapter 3 Theories of writing and Reader-Response: Social constructionism & Social interactionism 54-116

3.0 Introductory: Writing Research
3.1 The ‘Current Traditional’ Approach
3.2 Expressive Approach
3.3 Cognitive Approach
   3.3.1 Flower and Hayes’s Structure of Writing Model.
   3.3.2 The Use of Procedural Knowledge
   3.3.3 The Bereiter and Scardamalia Model of the Writing Process
       3.3.3.1 Bereiter and Scardamalia’s Model of the Knowledge – Telling
           Process
       3.3.3.2 Bereiter and Scardamalia Model of the Knowledge – Transforming Process.
       3.3.3.3 Limitations of the Bereiter and Scardamalia Theory.
   3.3.4 Review of the Cognitive Theory of Writing
3.4 Contexts for Written Communication
3.5 The Social View of Writing: Reader-Writer Dynamics
3.5.1 The Social Context Approach to the Writing Process
3.5.2 Halliday's Social Semiotic Approach to Literary
3.5.3 Writing as Function of Genre.
3.6 Reader Response Theories: Introductory
3.6.1 Phenomenological based Reception Theory.
3.6.2 Psycholoanalytical based Reader Response – Criticism.
3.7 Contrasting Social Constructionism and Social Interactionism.
3.7.1 Social Constructionism: LaLangue, Paradigms, Social Fact, Reified Vs. Actual Reader, Discourse Communities, Interpretive Communities.
3.7.2 The Impact of Social Constructionism on Scientific Writing.
3.7.3 Social Interactionism.
3.7.4 Social Constructionism and Social Interactionism: Critical Contracts.
3.7.5 Review of Social Interactionism.
3.8 Limitations of the Theory of Writing.

Chapter 4 Do writers fictionalize their 'audience'?: a critical review of research following Ong's hypothesis of fictionalized audience and its validation in terms of theories of 'writing' discussed in Chapter 3

4.0 Review of Research
4.1 ESL Writing Pedagogy: The Indian Context
4.2 The Context of the Study
4.3 The Study: Empirical Validation of the Data
4.3.1 Academic Writing Needs Analysis: The 1997 Survey
Design of the survey; Data on Writing Needs Analysis
4.3.2 Investigating the audience awareness of Basic ESL writers,
The Experiment; design of experiment, Data on Audience Awareness in varying conditions.
4.4 Results and Discussion

Chapter 5 Pedagogical Potential of Strategies in Fictionalizing Audience: Replacing the Current decontextualized approach to classroom written communication

5.0 Introductory
5.1 Heuristics – based Audience Analysis Strategies.
5.1.1 Strategy # 1: Berkenkotter (1981) Audience Related Activities; Coding Categories.

5.1.2 Strategy # 2: Ptister & Petrick’s (1980) model for Audience Analysis in written Discourse.

5.1.3 Strategy # 3: Krisher’s Heuristics for Reading-Writing situation.

5.1.4 Strategy # 4: Krisher’s Reader Profile & Purpose Statement & Hold’s Writing Goals and Audience.

Strategy # 5: Writing Goals and Audience

5.1.5 Pedagogical Strategies in Non Audience Context

Strategy # 6: Audience, Writer & Subject-Based Reasons

5.2 Peer Conferencing/Response/Feedback Strategies

Strategy # 7: (Elbow and Belanoff’s Peer-Response).

Strategy # 8: (Peer Conferencing to Promote composing)

Strategy # 9: (Tomkins’ Writing Group Response).

Strategy # 10: (Reid’s Worksheet: Reader Writer Response).

5.3 Strategy # 11: Journal Keeping

5.4 Strategy # 12: Reader-Protocol Method

5.4.1 Implication of Reader Protocol Method

5.5 Strategy # 13: Text based Strategy

5.6 Tasks based Strategy

Strategy # 14: Task 1-Audience awareness treatment questions linked with writing task instruction/Directions (Drafting and Revising).

Strategy # 15: Task 2- Audience oriented Context and writing prompt relating to the writing task instructions.

Strategy # 16: Task 3-Tasks for experimenting with the Real Audiences

Strategy # 17: Task 4-Judging the effectiveness of the Reader focused Texts.

Strategy # 18: Task 5-Reader focused texts.

5.7 Linkage Between Audience and Material Design

Strategy # 19: Practical Applications.

5.8 Theoretical Underpinnings of the Pedagogical Strategies: Revisited.

Chapter 6 Conclusion 189-198

6.0 Self Representation: Ethos-Persona Distinction

6.1 Writer Audience Relationship

6.2 Socio-cognitive Skills: A Significant Audience Variable
6.3 A Brief note on the Formal Education and Underprepared Student in Arunachal Pradesh

6.4 Pedagogical Implications and Recommendations

6.5 Limitations of the Present Research

6.6 The Scope for Future Research

Notes 199-200
References 201-218
Appendices 219-236
Appendix I
Appendix II
Appendix III
Appendix IV
Appendix V
Appendix VI
Appendix VII