Thank God for the slow loadening:
When I hold you now
We are close and deep
As the atmosphere on water.

-Seamus Heaney
The Otter, Field Work.

Praises to Almighty Allah who has taught man which he knew not. It is easy to enjoy all the laurels alone for the Herculean task of completing a doctoral thesis but I must admit that there were certain individuals and institutions, Indian as well International, who helped me in the completion of this thesis. As an honest scholarly duty I must acknowledge their support and help.

To begin with, my journey has been rather like Seamus Heaney’s journey to Stations, during which he was helped by many people. In the course of my research, I met many people who helped me with their scholarly advice, relevant research material and above all emotional support.

For a long time, I have groped for words and have not found appropriate ones to reflect my gratitude to Bill Ashcroft (University of New South Wales, Australia), Professor Homi Bhabha (University of Harvard), Dr Christine A Finn (University of Bradford, U.K), Professor Lorna Hardwick and Carol Gillespie, Project Officer (The Open...
University, U.K), Dr Leonita Finn And Dr Peter Mackay (Seamus Heaney Centre for Poetry, Northern Ireland), Torsten Caeners (Lecturer, University of Duisburg-Essen, Germany), Roger James, Managing Editor (Center for Irish Studies, University of St. Thomas, Houston) Eugene Kielt (Seamus Heaney Tours & Accommodation, Northern Ireland) for replying to my e-mails, extending advice and providing some research material.

I gratefully acknowledge the encouragement and support which I received from my Supervisor Dr Seemin Hasan. Her efficient supervision, academic advice and continuous encouragement made work enjoyable. I feel no hesitation in admitting that she influenced my interest in postcolonial studies and kept my interest alive in postmodern literature. I thank her for the faith which she has in me. I owe special thanks to Professor Sohail Ahsan, Chairman Department of English, A.M.U, Professor A.R Kidwai and Professor M M Adnan Raza for extending help and encouragement. I am grateful to Dr Asim Siddiqui for his million dollar smile which he always showers on me.

My heart goes out to my Ammi-Papa (parents), my Saif Bhaijaan (elder brother), Apiya (elder sister), my cousins Shariq, Asif Hayat and Sheeraz and other family members who have always remembered me in their prayers, put up with my tantrums, and have offered me unreserved support from far away. I remember with affection my friends- Zainab, Kashif, Asad, Yusuf, Tauheed, Ghayas and Intishab. Although they are all far away their emotional support and unconditional trust in me is behind each and every word of the thesis.
I highly appreciate the generous cooperation and assistance of the staff of many libraries I used, particularly British Council, New Delhi, India; American Centre, New Delhi, India; Maulana Azad Library, AMU, Aligarh; Seminar Library, Department of English, Aligarh. I owe a debt to Mr Khan Parvez Rafi (Seminar Incharge, Department of English, AMU, Aligarh) for his help. My friends Fareed, Sadiq Salman, Nadeem Akhtar and Azmatullah offered me unstinting support during the last onerous days of preparing this thesis.

There were others without whose help I could not have completed this thesis. Although I can not thank them all individually, they all are part of my memory and an indispensable part of my highest academic achievement. For all of them I can but echo:

Thanks to the human heart by which we live
Thanks to its tenderness, its joys, its fears,
To me the meanest flower that blows can give
Thoughts that do often lie to deep for tears
