ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

At the outset, I convey my deep sense of gratitude to a handful of writers, researchers and academicians, whom I have never met, but whose works, writings and philosophy ignited a new concept in my mind, making me to undertake a specialized study to give the concept a shape, which has resulted into the present study.

And my thanks goes to Terrace E. Deal and Allan A. Kennedy for their work “Corporate Culture: The Rites and Rituals of Corporate Life” (1982); again to Deal and Kennedy for their second book in this series, “The New Corporate Cultures: Revitalizing the Workplace After Downsizing, Mergers and Reengineering” (1999); to Dr Paul Temporal and Dr. Harry Alder for their book “Corporate Charisma” (1998) which advocates for active cultivation of personality or charisma to a corporate and explains how to achieve world-class recognition by maximizing company’s image, personality, brands and culture; to Charles Hamden Turner for his book “Corporate Culture: From Vicious to Virtuous Circles” (1990) and especially for his concept of ‘flat organizations’ for knowledge based companies and ‘creating a culture of high performance’ where culture occupies the apex position of leader’s responsibility hierarchy; and lastly to Jacalyn Sherritton and James L. Stern for their work “Corporate Culture: Team Culture” (1996) and their advocacy of team culture for knowledge based and technology companies as well as throwing light on ‘emerging trends in corporate cultures’.

I am grateful to a host of people, totalling 425 in numbers, residing and working in or around Delhi who were personally contacted by the researcher as ‘purposive samples’ during different stages of this specialized study, who spent their valuable time and energy in going through different sets of ‘questionnaires’ and ‘instruments’ and giving their responses, views and opinions on the topics / instruments. These ‘purposive samples’ mainly included IT professional and executives working with the six selected IT companies for this study, their branches and development centers located in Delhi, Noida and Gurgaon; IT professionals from other companies, corporate executives, management and HR consultants, industry watchers; academicians from IT, social sciences and management fields, business journalists, IT customers and some knowledgeable general public. My special thanks are due to all of them.

My thanks are due to Dr. Azhar Kazmi, the then Professor of Management at the Faculty of Management Studies and Research, Aligarh Muslim University, Aligarh for understanding and approving of the basic concepts which I had in my mind - 'a comprehensive and all inclusive corporate culture' as "Corporate Umbrella Culture" – (The C.U.C. Concept), and "Total Organisational Performance" – (The T.O.P. Concept) i.e. 'organisational performance in totality', and finalizing the 'title' of the study accordingly.

I am indebted to Prof. Kalim Mahammad Khan, Head and Dean, Faculty of Management Studies and Research, Aligarh Muslim University, Aligarh for providing guidance in rearranging and reshaping the study report to give it the final shape.

My special thanks goes to Mr. S. A. Khader, Dy. Director General, National Productivity Council, New Delhi for providing some useful literature on corporate culture and organizational performance as also for allowing me to use NPC library facilities which immensely helped me in review of literature on the current topic.

I would like to express my gratitude to Dr. Vijay K. Seth, Professor of Economics, HRM and International Business, Faculty of Management Studies (FMS), University of Delhi, Delhi for his guidance and valuable suggestions for various statistical tests required for the study such as item analysis, reliability tests and validity tests required for testing and finalizing the instruments as also reliability testing of data collected and checking dependability of results with the help of 'SPSS computer package' and 'Excel's statistical facilities' installed on computer. It was a big help to me in completing this study.

I gratefully acknowledge my deep sense of indebtedness to Prof. S. M. Ozair, Head of Management Studies, Faculty of Management Studies and Research, Aligarh Muslim University, Aligarh under whose supervision the study was conducted. His scholarly guidance, perceptive criticism and wise counsel have proved an invaluable asset to the study, without which this study could not have been completed.
I am deeply obliged to Dr. Sharmila Thakur, Associate Professor of Management, University of Petroleum and Energy Studies, New Delhi who as the external supervisor provided guidance, constant support and invaluable suggestions throughout this research study. She also provided useful suggestions and guidance to carry out statistical analysis and reliability testing of collected data and cross checking of validity of results.

In this academic endeavour, my late father Dr. K. P. Verma and late father-in-law Dr. S. P. Varma, the two leading lights in my life and the two sources of inspiration and constant encouragement in this research study right from the beginning which continued until recently, when both of them departed for their heavenly abode one by one during a span of few months. Though bodily they are not present to see the completion of this research work, I deeply feel their satisfaction and blessings in my heart.

My own family have supported me through the years, beginning with my wife Rashmi who took up various of the routine jobs I used to do, to spare some time for me to complete this study. And, at one stage when a stretch of six months was required to complete this study, Rashmi suggested me to leave the job in order to complete the research study. I did leave the job few months back for this purpose and she has been supporting the family, me and the research work expenditure since then.

I did the typing of the entire thesis report myself on a computer, but I always needed some one to set the computer and take out the prints. These jobs were always undertaken by my daughters Mehul and Vartika, happily and cheerfully.

In the end, I would like to convey my thanks to the library staff at American Center Library, British Council Library, FMS Library and National Productivity Council Library, Delhi who were always helpful in locating and providing me the required literature. And, last but not the least, my special thanks goes to Mr Zeeshan Haider, Mr Athar Ali and other office staff members at F.M.S.R., Aligarh Muslim University, Aligarh who were always very supportive, courteous and helpful throughout the duration of this study.

S. P. VERMA

20.8.2004