ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It gives me great pleasure to acknowledge the debt I owe to my teachers, colleagues and students who stimulated me throughout and enabled me to undertake this stupendous task. To name them individually would be well nigh impossible, hence I wish to apologize at the outset!

Prof. Dr. med. Paul Glees inspired me immensely and I am deeply indebted to him for initiating me into Experimental Gerontology and Electron Microscopy in 1965 when I spent 18 months with him at Goettingen (Federal Republic of Germany). Later, Dr. A.C. Shipstone, Dr. V.K. Bajpai and Dr. S.C. Maitra of the Central Drug Research Institute, Lucknow came to my rescue when I was in need of extending my ultrastructural research work on my return to India. For quantitative biochemical evaluations, my first Ph.D. student Dr. S. Fatahyab Ali (at present an awardee of N.I.H. Foundation, U.S.A.) I must thank most sincerely. Dr. S. Saleem Haider took over from him when he left for U.S.A. and has been instrumental in getting many of my stray thoughts translated into action. To him I am indebted for reminding me that it was time I submitted my work for D.Sc. and taking it upon himself to see it through. Dr. Fakhrul Islam, in his characteristically modest way helped me ungrudgingly times without number. Dr. Dhan Raj Singh, my most recent Ph.D. scholar, lived up to his reputation of dynamic versatility and through his superb thesis on "Stress" tranquillized my 'tension'. My former student (1960-62) and now colleague, Dr. Mohd. Ahmad, M.D., D.M. (Cardiology), Reader in Medicine has encouraged me throughout and goaded me whenever I happened to be crest fallen. His jovial approach towards problems of immense gravity inspired me deeply. Dr. Sohail Ahmad, Chairman, Department of Microbiology, shared with me my ups and downs ungrudgingly and proved to be a friend indeed! His timely advice and wise counsel stood me in good stead during the last decade. Mr. M.B.L. Johri, my esteemed friend, took all the care in 'typing' and allowed full play to his scientific skill as well as command of the language.

For my elder brothers, (Late) Mr. Bakhshish Husain and Mr. Ghulam Husain, I am unable to find words eloquent enough to express my gratitude, for it was their generosity and self-sacrifice which brought me up and saw me through my studies when our father passed away before I had started learning the alphabets. Last but not the least, I should be failing in ethics if I do not put on record my deep sense of gratitude which I owe to my wife, Abida Mahdi and son, Abbas Ali Mahdi, who allowed me to work 12 hours a day for the last fifteen years so that I may contribute whatever little I was capable of. Their self-sacrifice and love for academic pursuit have acted as a beacon of light to me.
